CHIC OF THE SPECIALIST

Where British Designers
Excel

(Special Air Mail Service)

London, Aug. 15.

No other country can cope so successfully with women's fashion requirements for the next two months as our own. There are no foreign dress artists who are so thoroughly "in the know" with the intricacies of our country amusements. For actual games and sports England always had specialists, and of late years the sports specialist has added cut and chic to all garments necessary to life in the country.

In the next two months the majority of the exclusive, and now generally well-dressed, social section are up North for the various house parties and northern games.

It is the average folk now indulging in the many pleasures of the country who can be so well equipped nowadays for sport and pleasure. In London and at our large country stores we can discover exactly the right tennis shirt, pullovers, and swimming suit. Also we shall find the perfect "ensemble" that always looks well for the spectator at the out-of-door games, country shows, and early autumn race meetings. It is economical to try to combine one coat that goes with a simple wool house frock, that can also have a matching short tailored skirt, and an Angora or striped silk shirt.

Exquisite Shades

The latest shirts and blouses, specially designed to wear under suede or leather coats, also look delightful with our darker tweed suits. The new Angora blouses are mostly in bright and lovely colours. We all know what exquisite shades these fine wools can be dyed.

Soft, light and warm, they are fitted closely to the waist by a ribbed band. They are ideal for packing.

Flame colour relieved a black tweed suit and a pale mauve was attractive with a navy pleated skirt and dark blue leather coat. Under a golfer brown suede zip-fastened coat a bright yellow blouse was worn with good effect.

These Angora shirts are cut to the neckline, close or bateau-shaped, and have plain long impudic sleeves to the wrist.

The cleverness of leaving the neck-line to depend on its finish either with a sporting stock or more elaborate bow, assures of the blouse fulfilling a variety of destinies. It can be worn for pure sport or equally well under the smartest town suit. It is at these points that one notices the genius of the specialists.

Jerseys and Pullovers.

Our leading English houses always specialise in an enormous variety of jerseys and pullovers. The newest jerseys or sports coats (so-called) in wool, woven or knitted, are undoubtedly cut much longer. Nothing could be more becoming or more sensible wear than a simple wool coat, buttoning straight up to near the base of the neck, finished with a variety of straight or turn-back collars—and sometimes revers. These coats are belted and the long sleeves are either put in semi-Baglan form, or from a fitted yoke below the shoulder. All such trifles must be carefully considered by the would-be-buyer.

Slim GIMs

London is now full of novelties coming under the elastic category of "sport," each jersey, cardigan, shirt and pullover being very carefully cut and fashioned. Even so, it is up to the individual wearer to see that her choice is made carefully.

Slim girls look best in the many shorter cardigans and coats to the waist-line. Very charming are the short, ribbed, wool cardigans cut just to reach over the waistline, with four sporting looking pockets, fastened with queer wood or plain steel buttons. Older women will welcome the longer and straighter coat.

Waistcoats

There are plenty of new waistcoats. Many in pale shades of knitted silks will look well with linen threads for early September days. Others, for storm and rain, are of wool, cut in line with the cardigan coat. These waistcoats come up high like a man's, so are really practical for bad weather to wear with our rough tweed skirts, mackintosh, or leather coats.

Wrong Shoes

High-heeled shoes, too fragile stockings, or any fanciful fall-lal would spell ruination to even the best of sports outfit. There is more danger of wrong shoes and stockings being worn in these days than there is in choice of hats. Wool berets and suitable felts are always first among autumn novelties in headgear, and attractive enough to make appeal to all.

Women who dislike wool hosiery can find semi-sporting designs and quiet, neutral shades in thin mixtures and fine thread. Lower heels are now smart wear for out of town.

LIGHT FELTS

"Light felts for the autumn," one seems to hear that everywhere. In the papers just arrived from home, this very popular material is given much prominence and because Eve's are always up to the minute in the goods they stock, they announce that they have just received a consignment of light felts in every shade and colour.

Eve is always so reasonable in their prices that it is a pleasure to do your shopping in her place, and her staff are so courteous that it is small wonder that her place is always so crowded.

MAIZEE'S SALE

These one day sales at Maizee's have become so popular that in answer to the demands of her customers Maizee is holding another one to-day. Let me advise you what to do about it. There is going to be a wide range of hats and dresses for the "early birds" so instead of lingering over the 11 o'clock cup of coffee at the Hotel, my advice to you is to go Maizee's first and get the hat or dress you want before somebody else snaps it up. Don't forget that the cool season is coming on and of course you know that it will mean more dances and parties, and then there is the September race meeting—you know you must not miss that. The entire stock is to be cleared at cost and below cost so don't miss this opportunity.

FLORAL TAFFETTA

Lane Crawford's are well-known for their "judgement." By this I mean that they manage to time the arrival of their new goods almost to perfection everytime. Their latest consignment is all that may be wished for. I saw one gown in floral taffetta, the latest style, in pink with blue and yellow flowers. Another was in heavy crepe with the square effect on the sleeves and with a low back. There were really so many of them that I cannot remember all the details, but I am not exaggerating when I say that it was really a treat to be in the Ladies Salon with all those beautiful gowns and dresses to feast one's eyes on.

WHITE FELTS

How many of you are aware that Mayo's have just received a consignment of white felts?

But seriously, though, Mayo's has the cutest selection of white felts and you need not be told how well they can make hats. They are like Aladdin, only instead of exchanging new lamps for old, they turn your old hat into a new one! If you want to be smart at the next race meeting, buy one of the nice white felt hats that are stocked in this "home of beautiful headwear."

Fabrics That Bring A New Grace To Fashion

The sheathe-like frock is revived with many improvements. Even the slit side has a new grace, for gracefulness is the keynote of 1934 fashions. All the foundation garments must be carefully chosen with this in view. Women with a little leisure now would do well to study fashions in lingerie. It is possible to be snake-like beneath and yet warm. That wonderful foundation garment, known, once as the corset, is lighter, slimmer, and more sleeky than ever, and still more beautifully constructed to ensure perfect fit to all the outer clothes. The new way is to use subtle art in each seam, sash, and drapery to give the impression of slim grace.

Materials can be luxurious as well as useful. Lame, more, and velvet are used, and there are many new schemes with embroidery and sequins. Women will glitter, but in a more unostentatious manner.

Black and all-white, for panne and velvet is lovely. There is a glorious fabric that is a cross between moire and lame in ivory, woven with a hint of gold. Then there is a purple panne with a red and silver splash in its composition that calls for the accompaniment of ermine or mink.

Velvet evening frocks have long matching capes. These are without fur. Younger girls will still favour Empire silk and striped frocks with wide sashes of silver and tiaras of silvered coils. Yellow and white, and that curious cinnamon shade with an olive-green stripe recall the period. So does a stray-coloured satin, with the skirt edged with blue taffeta, puffed sleeves and berthe also bordered with the fur.

The culture can stress the period. We can do all sorts of things with hair this autumn, from flattest swirls to plaits, tiaras, curls and the high, Spanish comb.

Ribbons are utilised in all sorts of picture frocks. They are very helpful in Empire styles. A new ruche or tiny loops of pale-coloured ribbons form a berthe and border to girlish gowns of white satin, taffeta and georgette, and many ribbon insertions are used in tulle. Fringes will stress the Spanish trend and weight some graceful capes and shawls.

Stiff bows of silk have supplanted the organdie and plique vogue. A real Victorian return is a dark red wool frock cut very severely in princess style and trimmed all up the front with bows of graduated size in faille ribbon, and this fastened up the back with small faille covered buttons. The fleck drapery was clever, consisting of narrow strands of the faille and wool fabric, with a light black stitchery. Worn with a black cloth beret and black furs, this was a most elegant revival from the past. Large bows and revers of velvet are seen on cloth coats.

Wood buttons in every sort of size and shape are pleasing for knitted garments, and the wool and tweed variety. Wood, in many colours, is attractive in country schemes. Red and brown, black and chromium, white and gold, green and yellow, are all successful.

IN A HEAT WAVE

The record heat wave in New York, now broken after 19 sweltering days, is responsible for a new fashion in evening dress. White linen dinner jackets were seen nightly on the Starlight Roof at the Waldorf.

To distinguish the wearers from bar-attendants, the jacket was worn with black trousers and black suede shoes.

The shoes were invented by the late Duke of Marlborough. They are worn in England by Mr. Brendan Bracken and Mr. James de Rothschild.

FLOWING SKIRTS FOR EVENING

Mediaeval Fulness

The new "duchesse" satin appears in abundance for full-skirted mediaeval gowns which Maggy Rouff contrasts with the Directoire and a tunic line for evening wear. This designer flutes skirts gradually into rich undulating widths to the ground from slim-fitting corsets. These models either have full evening decolletes or high ones with long sleeves in velvet.

Taffeta and faille are other

Salt prevents yeast from working and sugar helps it to do its work. In recipes where yeast is an ingredient always mix the salt with the flour and the yeast with the sugar.

romantic fabrics used. Colours are naturally restricted in this pure silk satin, but it is distinguished in black and white, a dark resinous red, and tones of dark bronze.

Bronze is a splendid note in velvet. It is also used for a gown worn with a flat hiplength cape of silver quilted lame, showing a quilted yoke of the brown beneath a Medici sable collar.

VELVET COSSACK COATS

Low hip-length coats take a new turn with one fashion creator, who gives them a different character by flattening backs and fronts against the body under belts passed through slittings. The result is a certain jauntiness at the side. Meticulously fitted sleeves with ornate decorations resolve into "bishop" styles set from a dropped yoke and raglan fitting.

Modified, this theme leads up to belted Cossack coats with this designer, who follows the flare at half length in jaunty mood with short collar and side fastening outlined by a narrow strip of fur.

The line appears again, when another designer follows it in noisette brown velvet to tip the skirt of a deep brown dress beneath. Flat fur, like caracul, seal, and brown Alaska seal seem to be the fetish for these coat lines. Breast pockets slant on the diagonal in many models with a similar movement repeated in skirts or coats just beneath the belted waist-line.

Further old-fashioned colours are seen in darkest blue velvet, black and dark red shot taffeta.

Black and white wide-striped faille is used for a rounded low front and high-backed corsage above a wide undulating black "duchesse" skirt.

NEW FASHIONS FROM PARIS

Crowded Mannequin Parades

(Special Air Mail Service)

London, Aug. 15.

Some of the new fashions from Paris were exhibited yesterday at the first of a series of mannequin parades held by Marshall and Snelgrove, of Oxford-street.

That these "out-of-season" shows, originated last year by this house, are successful is proved by the fact that the attendance was greatly in excess of the seating arrangements, and large numbers of the audience had to be accommodated on another floor.

Slip skirts to evening gowns, vividly contrasting petticoats showing under the hem, above the instep, one-sided shoulder effects, and longer capes, are interesting points about the new fashions.

The three-quarter coat promises to be as popular as ever in ensembles. The new line is fitted closely to the figure and belted. Costume coats are longer, and show a more defined waistline, slightly reminiscent of the suits of 1911.

Collarless Neckline

The collarless neckline of most of the new evening coats is balanced by lots of sleeve; one model of black velvet has voluminous bishop sleeves decorated with criss-cross bars of silver. There is a good deal of lame, both for evening coats and gowns. This season's metallic cloths are woven in a new manner, to make them drape as beautifully as the softest silk.

Cavalier cloaks of black velvet make brave evening wraps, and a daring novelty in evening frocks is one of cellophane in an unusual shade of blue. Backless blouses of metal cloth were shown for evening wear with black velvet or taffeta skirts.

A lovely clear shade of petunia is used for a copy of a Maggy Rouff cape of ruffled tulle. Paton's wing back evening frock is shown in a soft shade of blue.

SEASIDE WEAR

Promenade And Cocktail Time Dress

As the day advances and moods are wont to change from beach to luncheon and afternoon attire, at smart resorts, there is a charming little jumper suit tailored from white China washing silk which appeals to me, if only for the reason that I know how ideal it is to wear in very hot weather writes a correspondent. This looks unusually smart.

This mid-skirt-length frock is designed to go with a white fancy plique tailored jacket, that matches a jockey-peaked swathed cap.

"Golden Yellow"

Golden yellow handkerchief linen makes an excellent dress, executed on a simple coat-frock style buttoned all the way down the front on to yellow buttons, which take a line between big Norfolk patch pockets on the skirt.

The day is yet young, and there are other things to settle on beyond a bath. The late promenade and a cocktail meeting can be provided for in wide-legged pyjamas or ankle-length skirted dresses with high sleeveless tops made from handkerchief linen which, according to Chanel, stresses the tricolour note in red and blue floral impressions on a white ground, or the other way about. They are charming models assembled to go with half-length slack coats, models, too, that will serve for an ordinary dinner party. When a casino is in the offing, old-fashioned checked taffetas made with a great bow set against the back are smart.

These taffetas vary in tones from dark green to mid-green, and dark red to rose, as well as black and white when white camellias are massed closely together in following a deep V-back decollete.

EMBROIDERED GOLD IN EVENING PRESS

"Sculptured" Gowns Of Stiff Material

The outlook for evening clothes in the dress world is distinctly bright.

So far at any rate as her gowns are concerned, every woman can shine in the evening.

Velvet, plain and corded, rich satins, thick-ribbed silk, taffeta, faille, crisp taffeta, dull-faced silk fabrics with a crinkled, waved, blistered or quilted surface, are among the materials used for the new evening dresses. Some are plain. In many of them metal threads are interwoven with the silk.

Gold thread is interwoven with soft ribbed silk crepe, to give a corduroy effect; there are metal satins and metal moires, and soft creaseless velvets with gold or silver gleaming through the pile.

Small Designs

Sometimes instead of the metal being interwoven the material appears to be embroidered in gold or silver. The design is always small.

Small square or round spots, or silver or gold stars, appear against a background of dark-ribbed silk.

Richness of fabric and discretion as regards design are features of the new evening frocks.

Except for velvet, materials are stiff-clinging dresses are for the time being to be replaced by others, the materials used for which can "stand" by themselves, so that women's evening clothes look as if they had been sculptured rather than sewn.

As an alternative to metal, cellophane is used both in silk and woollen materials.

Stiffened lace is embroidered with cellophane to give the necessary bright touch to an evening dress. Metal sequins serve the same purpose.

Designers hold varying views on the subject of the length of skirt for evening gowns.

Some of these are just ankle-length; others touch the ground; others have one or two trains, an arrangement that has a great deal to recommend it on the score of convenience.

Slit-up Skirts

The battle between tight and full skirts looks like being decided in favour of the former.

Many are so tight that it looks as if the wearers will have to spend the evening standing if they want to keep their clothes intact. But women must walk, so the slit skirt has made its appearance.

Just how far it shall be split is left to the discretion of the designer.

Some evening gowns have skirts that are split up to a height of two or three inches above the left knee and worn without a petticoat. A black velvet gown of this type had a lifted hem line, slightly shorter at the back than in front.

Some designers prefer shorter skirts, perhaps at the centre of the front and back, or at the sides of the skirt.

The appearance of the slit skirt has induced others to introduce do when a marguerite daisy chain is massed together in "Hawaiian" formation to swoop over a back or decollete over white pique or linen gowns. This matching floral note achieves a discreet novelty for seaside evening elegance.

petticoat effects in the form of under founces in lace or net, either in the same colour as the dress or in white or cream, or in a frill of taffetas in a contrasting colour. Some dressmakers have been so carried away by the slit-fashion as to slash the skirt to ribbons to a depth of fourteen to eighteen inches from the ground, the latter to show off the beauty of the petticoat founce below.

Back Views

Others who have no use for the slit, while giving adequate width at the hem, tie the skirt closely round the wearer's figure about twelve inches above the back of the knee where a wide, spreading bow is placed as a finish.

In other words, a skirt of the early 'eighties keeping company with a bodice cut on strictly modern lines.

The peg-top skirt is another revival—its last appearance was a year or two before the outbreak of war.

The back view above the waistline of an evening dress is another subject about which dressmakers have divided views.

Backless dresses have as rivals others cut with a V, an oblong, an oval, or a deep square neckline at the back.

Other designers prefer a more or less intricate arrangement of crossing straps, or strips linked with plain metal or jewelled clips. Some frocks are cut to reveal a strip of skin down the centre back others a triangle with the base at the waistline.

Sleeves are seen in some models. This, with the existence of a reasonably high neckline in front, suggests that it is once more being realised that it is the duty of a dress, even if for use in the evening, to clothe the wearer!

Dresses Made of Glass

The first dress ever made of glass has been shown in Paris. It looks rather like mother-of-pearl, and its appearance suggests something more substantial than its name.

Women are not likely to be able to wear these dresses to any great extent yet, because the material has not been perfected.

Another new material is poussin. It is woven from feathers and silvery thread. Another material is of tweed and fur combined. It is called caniche, and shows tufts of fur sprouting at intervals against a tweed background.

New Fashion in Vells

A new muff is named the dagahund. It is long and reaches from elbow to elbow across the arms of the wearer.

Vells are no longer worn across the face. Instead they are used like a chin strap, or are square shaped and frame the wearer's face.

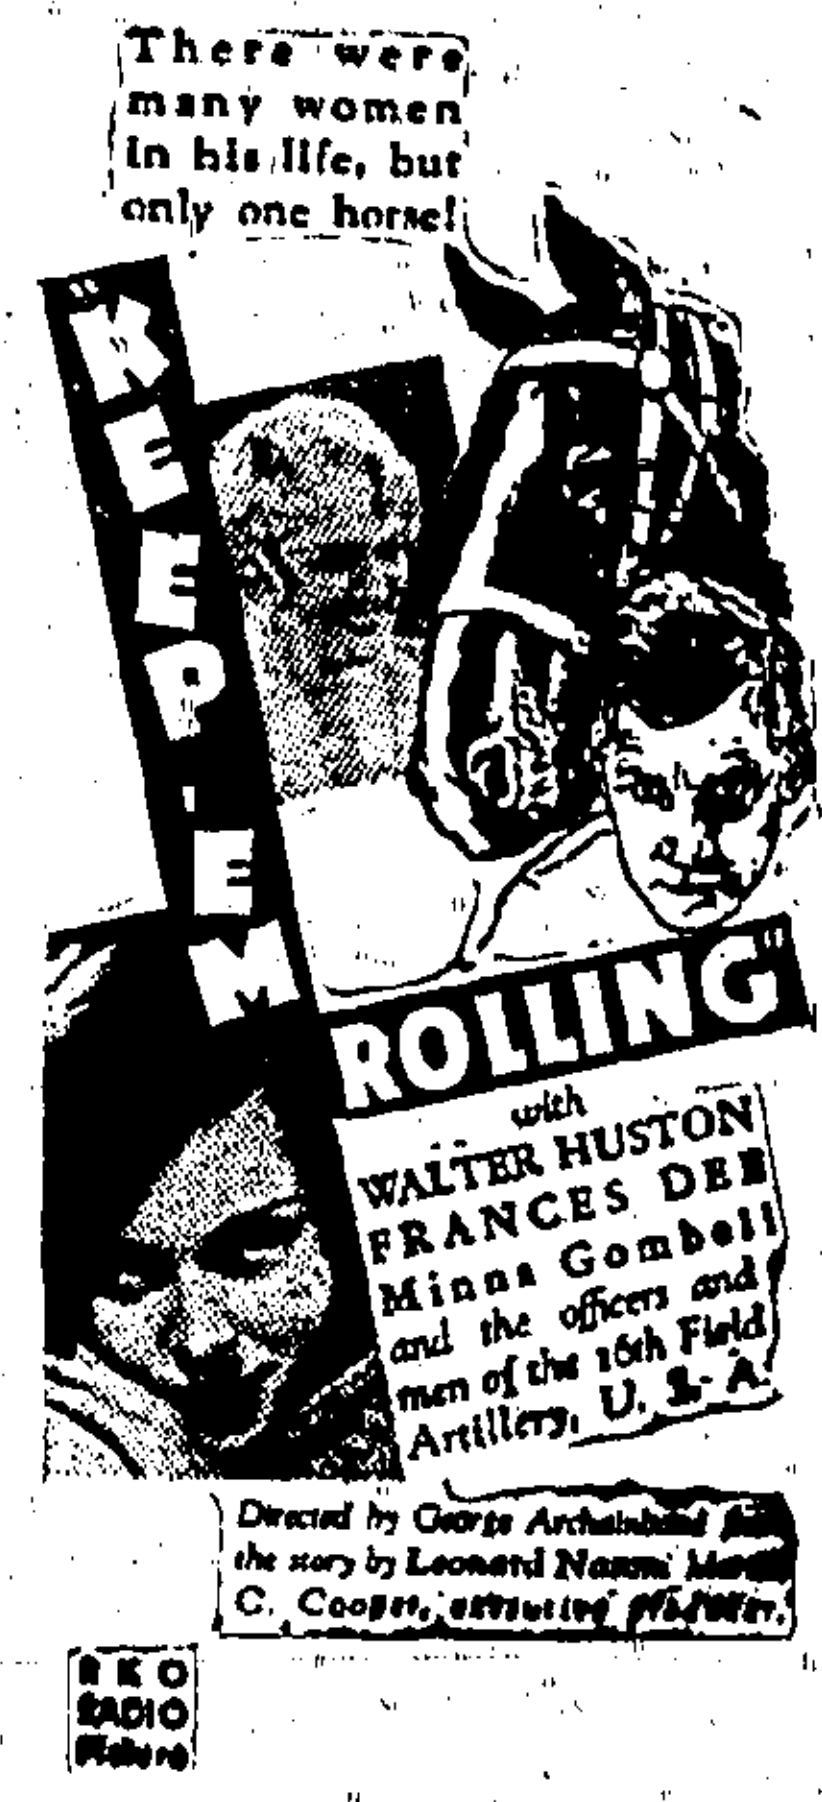

The crinoline is dead. The hoop, instead of being round the hips, is round the ankles. An evening dress, tight to the knees, spreads outwards to an enormous hoop which lies flat on the ground when the wearer sits still.

These are among the novelties introduced by Mme. Schiaparelli.

CONRAD VEIDT

"The Wandering Jew"

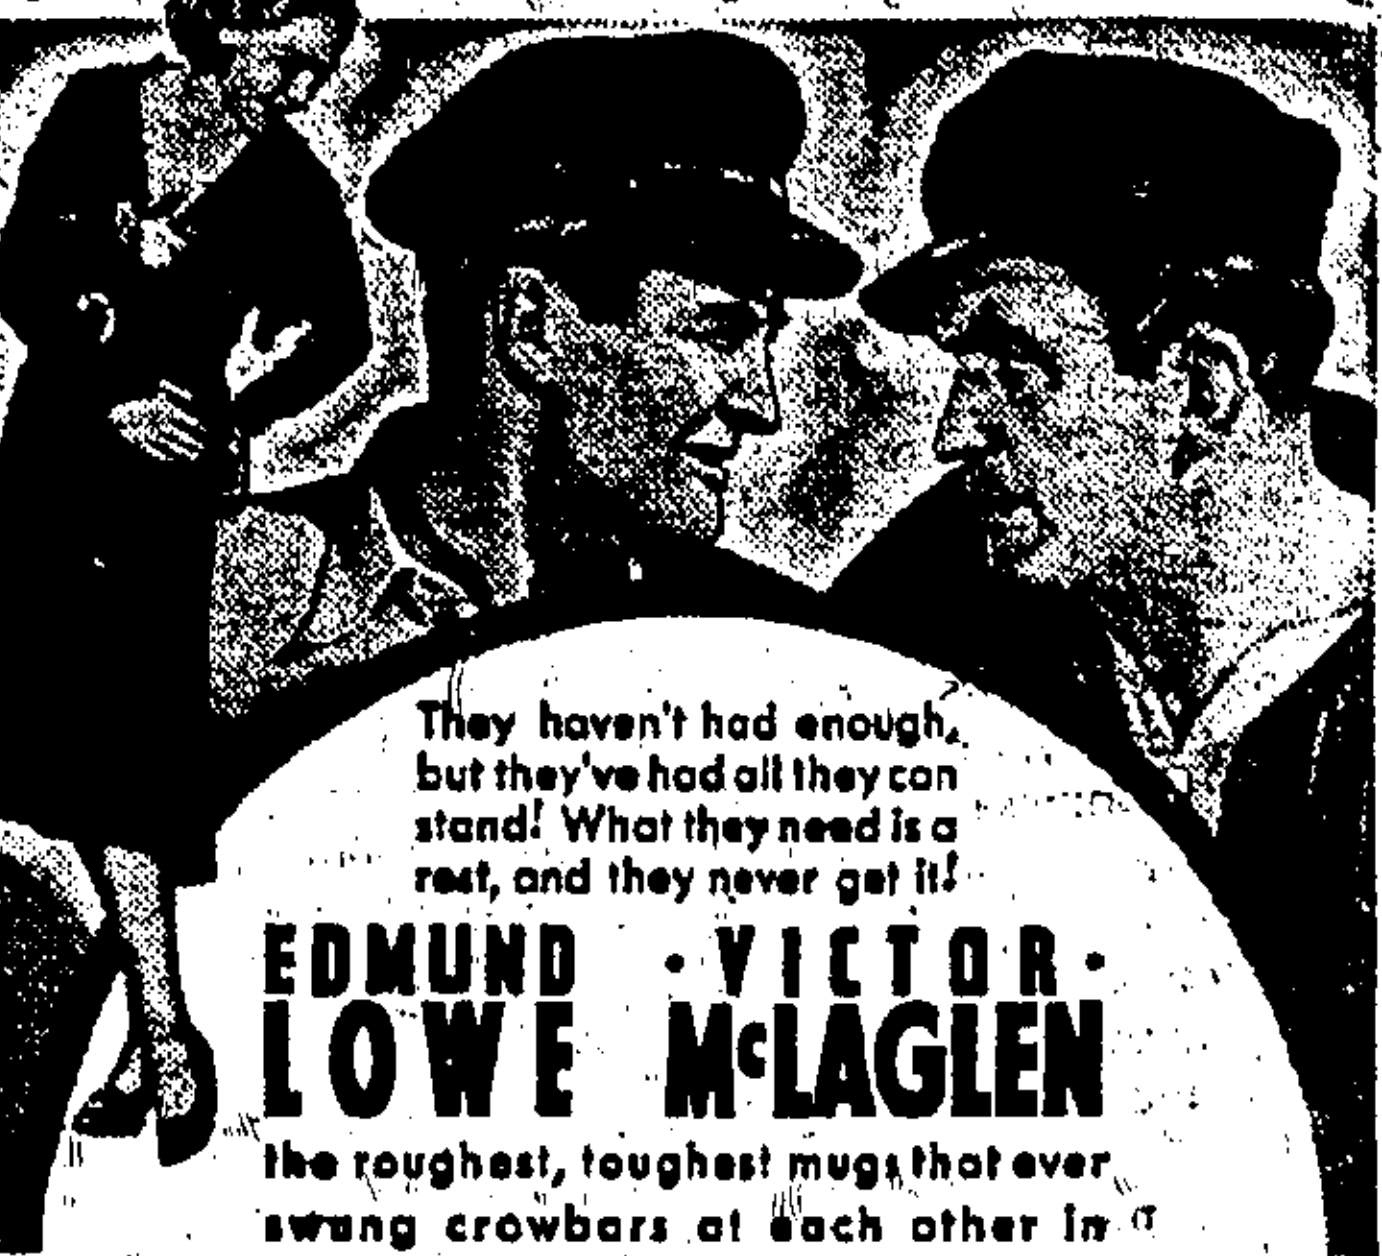

For nearly a year Julius Hagen, Managing Director of Twickenham Film Studios, had wished to make a screen version of E. Temple Thurston's great masterpiece "The Wandering Jew." the picture coming on Sunday to the Queen's Theatre; and from the moment he planned to make it he had nobody but Conrad Veidt in mind for the title role. But it was not so simple as it sounded. Veidt accepted the part as soon as he had read the script but he was not free at the time. He had a series of engagements to fulfill. The last of these was his part in "I was a Spy" and a few weeks after the completion of this picture he reported at Twickenham, and Mr. Hagen's dreams began to materialize.

The author died while working on the screen adaptation of his play. The loss was very real; Thurston was deeply interested in the prospect of seeing the "Jew" become a talkie, and he was going to assist with the production. However, the unfinished work was carried on by Mrs. Thurston, who was her husband's secretary, and knew what he had planned to do.

CAUGHT IN A STAMPEDE

Tim McCoy In The Riding Tornado

"OPERATOR 13"

At The Queen's

The wealth of detail that a historical motion picture production demands to insure its authenticity is revealed in "Operator 13," Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's co-starring vehicle for Marion Davies and Gary Cooper which is at the Queen's Theatre.

The production is based upon the thrilling spy story "Operator 13" the last best-seller novel written by the master storyteller, Robert W. Chambers, before his death last year.

It centres around the earlier years of the Civil War when the South seemed certain of winning the conflict and at a time with the Confederate forces dangerously threatening Washington, D. C. when the labour of spies, both Union and Confederate, provided many of the dramatic incidents of all military history.

To film such a story called for a great labour of research and exploration into many of the historical libraries and societies of the North and South before the first foot of film could be exposed.

And it befell the corps of research experts at the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer Research Department to solve the following problems:—

Military telegraph forms, with the proper wording for a report of a Union defeat, were needed and found. Accurate colour plates of all uniforms, both Union and Confederate, of officers, colour bearers, infantry and cavalry were requested and produced.

Caught in the mad turmoil of a stampede of 500 wild horses, Tim McCoy, making scenes for his latest picture, "The Riding Tornado," felt quite at home. The same dangerous predicament had faced him once before, in real life, back on the Wyoming range. In "The Riding Tornado," coming to the Alhambra on Sunday, McCoy is riding herd at night when a gun-shot sets the herd frantic with terror. His own horse bolts, and stumbles, leaving him aloft in the midst of 1,000 panicky hoofs, a ruthless, frenzied stampede.

The horses, charging with a wedge, McCoy between them, threatening any moment to trample him underfoot. Alertness and agility gained in such an actual situation as this ten years ago, were the only things that saved McCoy from an almost certain death.

Tim was not the only member of the production who took chances of danger when these scenes were photographed. The script called for dawn as the time of the stampede. So with firm compliance to demands, D. Ross Lederer man called his gang out on location at 4 a.m.

The camera crew, in a light truck specially constructed to operate over rough ground, had to mix in the stampeding herd within fifteen feet of McCoy, so as not to miss any of the dramatic action that took place. This situation, that held threats of tragedy if anything should go wrong, had its comic touch when one horse chose the camera truck as his means of exit from the excitement. He rode for about twenty feet with his front hoofs hooked onto the truck body, until it could be stopped and the animal extricated.

"NO MORE WOMEN"

Lowe And McLaglen Again

BONQUETS ALL THE WAY

(Special Air-Mail Service)

London, Aug. 15.
Mr. Sopwith has already pleased the Americans by placing the order for the refitting of the Endeavour in the hands of Herreshoffs, the builders of every America's Cup defender for the last thirty years. The significance of this change will be appreciated by those who remember the spy mania of previous races. In those days the yachts of the contending countries were guarded by police. The windows of the yards in which they were kept were carefully draped, and when the yachts were dry-docked they were protected from enemy eyes by a canvas screen.

Mr. Sopwith has changed all this, and it is hoped, has added another contest to the short list of those international events in which defeat is not worse than death.

Miriam Hopkins, Paramount star, has been chosen by Marcel Rochas, French designer, as Hollywood's best-dressed woman.

NO MORE WOMEN

And Plenty Of Fights

Whenever Edmund Lowe and Victor McLaglen are together in a picture, the result is invariably a laugh riot for these two cannot get together without having a fight whenever and wherever possible. In "No More Women" they are just the same and it would be no exaggeration to say that they are worse than ever for this time, as a pair of deep sea divers, they have a fight in the bottom of the sea!

That, however, is only one small incident in the "reel of laughter" and as in the case of all good pictures, it would perhaps spoil the enjoyment if one were to know all about the picture before going to see it, and for this reason the writer will refrain and not let his enthusiasm run away with him. The fact remains however, that "No More Women" is an excellent picture and one that should not be missed.

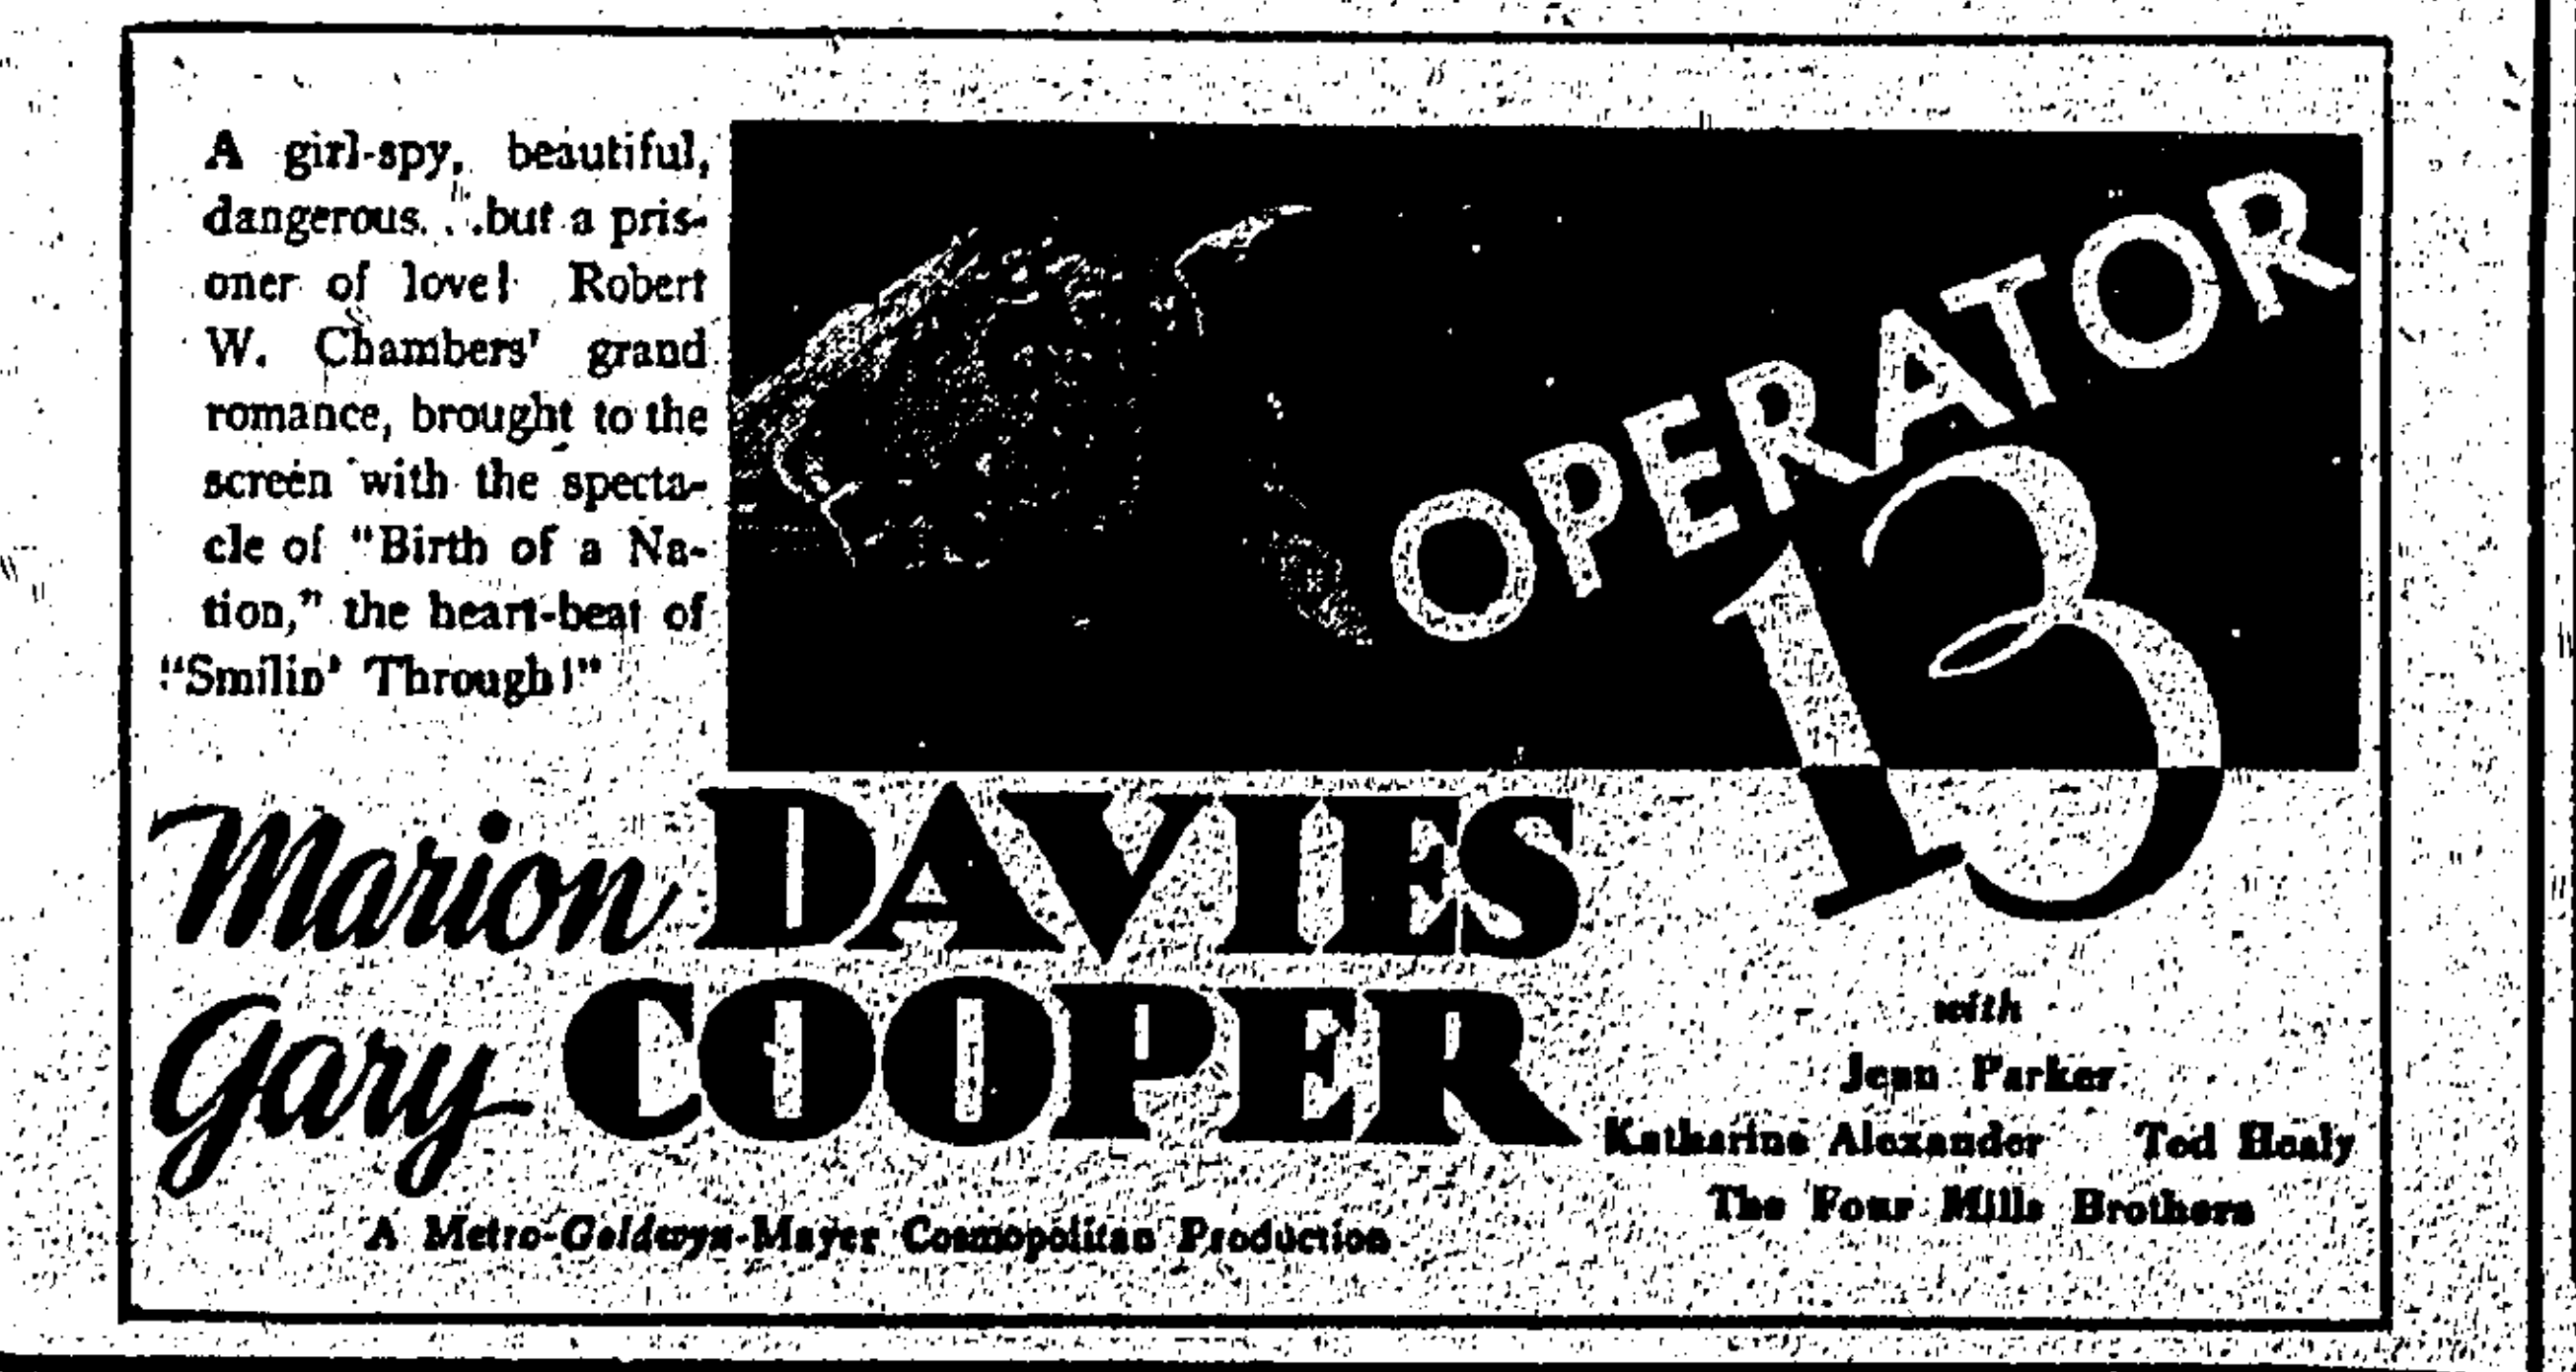

Sarcasm
A girl was driving her car when something went wrong with the engine. The traffic light changed from green to red back to green, and still she could not get the car to budge. The traffic policeman strolled up.
"What's the matter, Miss?" he inquired kindly. "Ain't we got the colours you like?"

60—Police Court Procedure

It having come to our knowledge on Friday last that a Swatow merchant from ten to twelve years' good character had been committed to prison for a month on a charge of larceny, we went to the Police Court on Saturday and applied for the re-hearing of the case. Ten or twelve of the prisoner's friends accompanied us thither, all proprietors of hong, who stated they had known the unfortunate for ten or twelve years, during which time they had placed unlimited confidence in his honesty and integrity, and had personally entrusted him at various times with credit to the extent of one thousand dollars. It would appear that an English sailor on the evening of the 10th instant, while walking along Queen's Road had three quarters of a dollar snatched from his person by one of those native foot pads which abound in this colony. Jack of course gave chase; the thief, as usual, had the best of it and, by dodging in a crowded thoroughfare got clear off. The object of our pity happening to cross the street at the time in order to purchase some tobacco was seized by the sailor and sworn to at the Police court on the morning of the 11th as the thief, and so positive did the evidence appear that the prosecutor on oath said that "he had kept his eye upon him all the time." The Chinese stated the sailor to have been somewhat under the influence of drink; Jack swore he was not drunk, and the police sergeant corroborated his testimony. The prisoner, conscious of his own innocence, and frightened by being grasped so unexpectedly by the police, made no application, before committing to any of his friends. They were not acquainted with the circumstances until the day after when one of them applied to Mr. Caldwell for assistance and advice. Mr. Caldwell stated that the fact of the prisoner having been committed for a month, rendered assistance impossible. We were received very courteously by the Chief Magistrate, who expressed his willingness to aid in the matter and immediately granted a new trial. The prosecutor having left the Colony, the Chief Magistrate, after hearing the character given by the prisoner by his brother merchants, immediately released him on security being given for his good behaviour for three months, two of his friends consenting to act as sureties in the sum of one hundred dollars each.

Schoolboy Rowe's Pitching

New York, Aug. 29. Pitching for Detroit Tigers in the major league American baseball earlier in the week, Schoolboy Rowe tied the League record by pitching 18 consecutive victories. To-day, Rowe attempted to set a new record in the second game of the double-header against Philadelphia Athletics—after the Tigers had won by a 12 to 7 tally—but he failed to subdue them. Defeated in his objective, Rowe was recalled to the sidelines in the seventh innings because he was obviously growing weak under the strain of the Philadelphia rampage.

The Athletics went on to score 13 runs to the Tigers 5, thus sharing the spoils in their double-header game. New York Giants, world champions, were shut out by Warneke of the Chicago Cubs who won by only a run. Boston Braves won by the wide margin of 11 runs, Pittsburgh Pirates being dismissed by Betts. In the return game, however, the Pirates won by seven runs, this time Walterhoyt shutting down the Braves. The following were the results:—

THE CAMERONS

Highland Guard For Buckingham Palace

(Special Air Mail Service)

London, August 15. London traffic was halted yesterday to let the 2nd Bn. (Queen's Own) Cameron Highlanders pass from Waterloo Station to Chelsea Barracks, for on August 25 they will, for the first time, mount guard at Buckingham Palace, and St. James's Palace while the Guards Brigade are away on manoeuvres. It is twenty-five years since a Highland regiment has acted as Palace guards, and a large crowd gathered at Waterloo to welcome the Camerons on their arrival from Aldershot. To mark the event the band of the Scots Guards was drawn up outside the station to head the march of the Highlanders to their new barracks.

Police kept two of the platforms at Waterloo clear for the special trains carrying the troops and their baggage, but an interested crowd lined the barricades while the advance party on the first special train were unloading the men's kit into Army Service Corps motor wagons. A cheer greeted the arrival of the second "special" with its 500 kilted officers and men.

Picturesque Scenes

To the roll of side-drums and the sound of pipes the Camerons marched off behind the band of the Scots Guards. In their khaki tunics, new kilts, richly woven with greens and feds and yellows; sporran of black and white, blue Glengarry bonnets, and diamond-

EXTRADITION CASE

Further proceedings for the extradition by the Canton Government of Leung Shu Fan, alias Leung Kit Man, were taken at Central Magistracy yesterday when after the first charge had been completed another count was preferred against the man.

Mr. J. A. Fraser, assistant Attorney General, appeared for the Crown, and Mr. T. P. Prentiss represented the fugitive. The first count against the accused was for a robbery in the Young Chun village, Kau Kong district in 1930. It was alleged that he and a gang of bandits looted a house to the value of $7,000 after their demand for $5,000 had been refused. At yesterday's hearing, Mr. Fraser told the Magistrate (Mr. Hamilton) that the accused was also wanted by the Canton authorities for an alleged robbery in the Ting Tong Market. Tung Wah She village, San Hing District, but on this charge he was not going to offer any evidence. The accused was accordingly discharged on this count.

The third charge on which the extradition of the accused was being sought, referred to a robbery at the same place in February 1, 1932.

Outlining the facts, Mr. Fraser said that at 7 a.m. on February 1, 1932 Wong Chung Pang was in his house with two foks, Ip Kam and Lui Yee when accused and a number of men with firearms entered the place. They put the inmates under guard and broke open a wooden box which contained valuables, and took jewellery and clothing to the value of $1,000. A report was made to the authorities and a warrant of arrest was issued against the accused.

On August 28 in this Colony, accused was identified at a parade at Central Police Station by his three victims.

Evidence was then given after which the case was adjourned.

ALIEN SENT TO PRISON

On a charge of entering the Colony without a valid passport, Ali Mohamed, a native of Aden, who spoke Russian fluently, was sentenced to 14 days' imprisonment by Mr. Hamilton at Central Magistracy yesterday.

Detective Sergeant Mottram told his Worship that the palke could not find anyone speaking defendant's dialect, but he had lived in Russia and spoke Russian very fluently. Defendant's story was that early in 1932 he made his way to Vladivostok where he had lived until about two months ago. He applied to leave the country, and was put into prison for twenty days. When he came out of prison he spoke to the German Consul, and managed to get an exit permit, and made his way to Shanghai. There he was assisted by the Muslim community, and came to Hong Kong, having paid $8 passage on a Chinese steamer. Defendant did not want to go back to Aden but wished to be sent back to Shanghai.

It was stated that while the man is serving his sentence arrangements would be made by the Police for him to be sent away.

FOOD STOLEN FROM BARRACKS

Tsang Fat, a cook, employed by the War Department, Devil's Peak, Shaokwan was charged before Mr. Hamilton at Central Magistracy yesterday with stealing food from the barracks, while another charge of receiving was preferred against Tsang Yuk, assistant cook.

The first defendant was sentenced to one month's hard labour and the second was fined $50 or, in default, three weeks' imprisonment.

"COSTLY ENTERTAINMENT"

When five Chinese were charged before Mr. Hamilton at Central Magistracy yesterday with causing obstruction in a public place, it was revealed that the Bay View Police Station was besieged by a crowd of over 200 on Wednesday night, who had come to make fun of four women arrested for soliciting.

In fining each of the defendants $10 or, in default, 14 days' hard labour, his Worship remarked that he took a serious view of the matter, because if one man in the crowd had lost his head there might have been a nasty row.

POSSESSION OF RAZOR

When charged before Mr. Macfadyen at Central Magistracy yesterday with the unlawful possession of a Warden's Razor, Li Luk, 26, claimed that he picked it up in Connaught Road near the Japanese shipping offices.

The magistrate amended the charge to one of larceny by finding and imposed a fine of ten dollars or, in default, fourteen days' imprisonment.

"Say, mister," interrupted a listener, "can you comb your hair with it?"

BROADCASTING IN INDIA

London, August 29. The question of broadcasting has for some time past been under the active consideration of the Government of India. Already in several provinces broadcasting systems are in operation and are making satisfactory progress despite language and other technical difficulties, and in a speech before the Indian Legislative Assembly to-day, the Viceroy, Lord Willingdon, who had recently returned from England, said it was hoped that a system embracing the whole of India and affording the opportunity for provinces for expressing their own culture as well as giving additional items in English would soon be established. The Viceroy referred also to the proposals for appointing trade commissioners in certain foreign countries which were approved at the recent conference of provincial governments. On the current economic questions to be made a Commissioner had already been appointed to Hamburg and the appointment of a similar officer at Milan has been approved. Other centres in which Indian Trade interests will be represented include New York, Alexandria, Durban and Bombay.

The development of civil aviation with equipment on modern lines of Karachi, Rangoon and Karachi-Madras routes, and the opening of new lines linking up certain other great centres was also forecast by the Viceroy. The number of persons under detention for offences in connection with civil disobedience has now fallen to about 500 and in expressing the hope that the curtain had fallen finally upon the movement, Lord Willingdon said he attributed this happy result less to Government action than to the good sense of people. He added that he anticipates a healthier atmosphere would result from the general condemnation of terrorism and the appeal of the leaders of opinion in Bengal called forth by the attempt on the life of Sir John Anderson, the Governor of that province. Lord Willingdon offered no forecast of the recommendations of the joint select committee of Parliament on constitutional reform but assured the Assembly of England's goodwill and sympathy for the Indians' natural aspirations. POLICING OF THE SAAR

(Special to the "Hong Kong Daily Press" (Copyright).)

Geneva, Aug. 29. Two leading Geneva newspapers, "Journal de Geneve" and "L'Assoluto" discussed at length on Wednesday afternoon what the Swiss Federal Council would do if the League of Nations were to ask that Swiss troops should be sent to the Saar territory for police service.

Both papers report the same message from their Bernese correspondents, who, both evidently inspired by the same official source, state that under no circumstances would Switzerland accede to such request.

The "Journal de Geneve" says that no Swiss armed contingent will proceed Saarwards. Transcendental Kuo Men.

The Luk Hoi Tung Co., Ltd.

PETITION FOR WINDING-UP SOUGHT BY DEPOSITOR

SEQUEL TO PROPERTY SLUMP

The winding-up of the Luk Hoi Tung Co., Ltd. with a capital of three million dollars, and owners of enormous leasehold property in Hongkong was sought by one of its depositors, supported by an unsecured creditor at the Supreme Court before the Chief Justice, Mr. A. D. A. MacGregor yesterday.

Mr. H. G. Sheldon, instructed by Mr. G. S. Hugh-Jones of Messrs. Wilkinson and Grist, represented the petitioner, Chan Chik Ting, a depositor to the extent of $20,000, who was supported in his petition by Chan Chun Tak, an unsecured creditor, while Mr. F. C. Jenkin, K.C., instructed by Mr. D. B. Evans of Messrs. Johnston, Stokes and Master, appeared for the Luk Hoi Tung Co., Ltd., the Man Chuen Co., Ltd. (formed to save the former company from liquidation) and 32 unsecured creditors who opposed the petition.

The total indebtedness of the company was given as $2,700,000, and the petitioner's deposit was $20,000.

The company opposed the petition on the ground that it was not brought with the "bona fide" intentions prescribed for under the Ordinance.

Mr. Jenkin said the petition had one supporter but all the remaining creditors (on the list in Court) were opposing. He appeared for 32 of the unsecured creditors—unsecured in the sense that they had not taken up debentures.

Mr. Sheldon said the nominal capital of the company was $2,000,000, the amount actually paid up being $475,500.

The petition was opposed by the Man Chuen Company Ltd., which was a Debenture Trust Company formed in circumstances which would be revealed later.

The affidavit of Chan Fu-cheung, secretary of the company, set out that the petitioner called on him relative to the suspension on November 16, 1933, of payments out by the company. Interest on his deposit of $20,000 was paid to Chan Chik-ting on the 24th of that month.

No Fraud

He suggested that a meeting of the depositors, most of whom were in the Toi Shan district, should be called to make out a scheme to save the company from liquidation. This was done and preparations of the Debenture Trust Deed was made resulting eventually in the Man Chuen Company. Chan Chik-ting was made a director of that company but his name did not appear in the list which had been filed but in making that statement counsel did not wish to infer that there was fraud.

Later Chan Chik-ting came to Chan Fu-cheung, continued the affidavit, and said that an opium business he was running in Canton was in a very bad way and he committed $10,000, threatening to commit suicide unless the money was forthcoming. The secretary agreed to pay but apparently petitioner could not wait for the money for on January 13 of this year he issued a writ of summons claiming $20,000, the amount of his deposit, and interest.

Payment Agreed

It was therefore evident that unless something was done the whole scheme of arrangement of the depositors would fall through. It was agreed to pay the $10,000.

Counsel here interjected, that actually a mortgage for $10,000 was given to him in the name of his nephew who represented him.

Chan Chik-ting then agreed to give up his deposit books and accept instead a debenture.

On or about March 15 the premises were seized in execution of a writ issued by Chan Chik-ting and it became apparent to the secretary that the original action had never in fact been withdrawn, although as far as he was aware, no further demand for payment had been made either by petitioner or his solicitors and it was expected that Chan Chik-ting would call and take up his debenture.

As a result of the seizure, the Man Chuen Company appointed a receiver and an arrangement was arrived at that Chan Chik-ting withdraw the action on payment by the company of his legal costs. Sometime subsequent however, he again approached the secretary, requesting payment of $2,000, or $3,000 of his deposit and stating that he would accept a debenture for the rest. This was refused.

Bad Feeling

Counsel continued: I take it that in this case the debt is admitted or undisputed and the case against the company is that the creditor has a right to a winding-up order. The feeling of the affidavit—the sting in it—seems to suggest bad feeling against the creditor because he, having agreed to accept debentures, wanted his deposit back instead. He entirely denies that he made such an agreement. He denies the suggestion that he, having agreed to a compromise, goes behind their backs and tries to get a winding-up order.

The affidavit of Sik Chai-fat, director of the Man Chuen Company, made on behalf of the debenture holders, was dealt with by Mr. Sheldon.

In October, 1933, the affidavit stated, the Luk Hoi Tung Company was indebted to its depositors, numbering 1,959, to the extent of $2,700,000 odd. The depositors were as widely scattered as the Federated Malay States and America besides those at Toi Shan and other parts of China. The company's assets consisted almost entirely of leasehold property and loans on interest made to companies.

Property had depreciated enormously in Hongkong. At a meeting of the creditors it was decided to meet their debts by issuing debentures to the creditors and a scheme was drawn up with the idea of preventing them being forced into liquidation by any of the creditors.

The debentures were to the value of $1,900,000 of which the unsecured creditors were represented by $800,000.

The Reasons

Giving reasons for the proposition to the petition for winding up, the affidavit went on to state that the company, it was understood, made a profit of $145,000 for the year ending September 1933 and maintained that earning power up to January of this year. If the company was forced into liquidation it would have to sell its properties at a time when they would not realise enough to cover the mortgages.

"I have tried to estimate what would happen if a winding-up order was made and I believe that a dividend of between ten and 20 per cent to unsecured creditors is the most we could pay," continued the affidavit.

"The Debenture Trust would also probably be rendered void: Over 80 per cent of the creditors had accepted debentures in settlement of their debts. I am informed by Chan Chui-chung that if the company is permitted to carry on paying interest on the debentures and is not immediately harassed by its creditors there is a possibility with an improvement in the trade of the Colony that the company may be in a position in January, 1940, to pay debenture holders in full."

32 Opponents

Mr. Sheldon said he would submit that debenture holders were not entitled to be heard as against unsecured creditors.

The affidavit of Lee Sing-hong and his following five opponents to the petition showed that their claims were some $42,000.

Mr. Jenkin here interjected that there were another 28 opponents making 32 together; the additional 28 claims amounting to $28,405 making a total of $70,405 which was almost the total of the Hong Kong unsecured creditors.

Referring to Lee Sing-hong's affidavit, Counsel read from it that the unsecured creditors believed they would get nothing if a winding-up order was made; the sale of the company's property realising barely sufficient to cover the existing mortgages in their opinion.

Legal Submission

Mr. Sheldon began an exhaustive series of law submissions with the remark that the present petition was the only remedy left to his client.

Chan Chik Ting he added, denied that he consented to act as a director of the Man Chuen firm or that he instructed Chan Pak Shung to act for him. Nor did he agree to accept the scheme of settlement. He did accept a mortgage of $10,000 from Chan Yee made out to Chan Kan as his nominee, this being in reply to his demand for $10,000 of his deposit.

Mr. Jenkin applied for leave to cross-examine the petitioner saying that he hoped to show that the petition was not a "bona fide" one. He did not reply on that altogether, however, in opposing the petition.

Petitioners Cross-Examined

Petitioner then went into the witness box.

Mr. Jenkin: The Luk Hoi Tung bank depositors are overseas Chinese and represent their savings pending their return on retirement to Hong Kong or China?

Witness: I cannot say. Do you know that if this bank fails, these people's savings will be wiped out and their homes wrecked?—I am only doing this in my own interest.

You were much concerned in the welfare of this company?—Yes.

You suggested, did you not, that immediate steps be taken to get the depositors together with a view to solving the position?—Yes.

It was at your instigation that any suggestion of saving the company was started?—Yes. I proposed that.

Because you wanted the interest of your brother depositors to be safeguarded?—Yes.

Witness stated that notices were sent out to all depositors and in due course meetings of the depositors took place. At the third meeting a management committee was formed at his suggestion.

Mr. Jenkin: Still, because you had at heart the interest of all your co-depositors and because above all things you wanted to avoid the winding-up or liquidation of this bank?—Yes.

In order to prevent nearly 2,000 depositors from practically losing their all?—Yes.

Several Schemes

Several schemes were suggested, were they not, with the idea, both for the benefit of the depositors and the company, that the depositors should agree not to call repayment until some future time?—Yes. We had that idea.

For instance, one of the earliest schemes was that each depositor should take shares to the amount of half his deposit; and the other half should be repaid in instalments over a period of five years?—Yes.

And it was considered that that scheme and some of the others which were not finally adopted were not sufficiently strong really to give the Company time enough to recover?—No. It was considered that the scheme could not be put through, and the suggestion was abandoned. Since that early suggestion had been abandoned another company was formed known as the Man Chuen Co.

Was it decided to form the Man Chuen Co. at the meeting held on December 25?—No.

Was it resolved to form a Company on that day under any name at all?—There was a discussion to take steps to form a company.

"Some Discussion"

I put it to you that it was also decided to ask the depositors to become members of that company by accepting debentures?—There was no such resolution.

And by a further resolution it was decided to get the Luk Hoi Tung Bank to hypothecate their assets with the Man Chuen Co?—No.

You admit you were present at the meeting?—May I refer to my notes of the meeting?

But you have denied all these resolutions?—I was at the meeting.

I put it to you that it was well-known that these debentures which were going to be offered to depositors were to be redeemable in six years?—There was perhaps some discussion, but there was no resolution and no agreement at all.

Did not the whole scheme depend on the length of time you kept the depositors at bay?—No that was not our object.

Well, to get them to agree to postpone their payments was the main feature of the scheme?—No. The hearing was adjourned until 2.30 p.m. to-day.

ALLEGED MURDER

Serious Charge Against Chinese

At Kowloon Magistracy yesterday, a Chinese named Keung Tsze-pan appeared before Mr. Wynne-Jones on a charge of the alleged murder of Yim Chun, Chinese male, and Keung Wai-lan, female, who were found dead in a cubicle on the third floor of 211, Lai Chi Kok Road on the morning of July 21, last.

The defendant was not legally represented while Mr. W. J. Lockhart Smith appeared for the Crown.

Mr. Lockhart Smith in his opening address said:—The deceased couple Yim Chun and Keung Wai-lan alias Keung Sau-lin were living at the time of their death at No. 211 Lai Chi Kok Road, 3rd floor. They were not man and wife although they had been living together for some two months.

This was known to the accused who alleges that the girl was his wife but this was denied by her father, and indeed seems improbable as the accused is a clansman of the deceased girl with the same name.

The father states that he believed that his daughter would marry the deceased man and that the accused had a wife in the country. On July 18 the accused visited the scene of the crime and asked for the girl. The dead man denied that she was there, but the principal tenant told the accused that the girl lived in the rear cubicle. On July 19 the accused revisited the floor and walked straight into the rear cubicle without invitation and there found the dead man and the dead girl. A conversation was overheard by the male deceased's brother, in which the accused demanded that the couple should separate and appeared angry when he left. He called again in the afternoon of the same day and threatened that lives would be lost if the couple did not separate. Accused returned to the mission in Belchers Street and on July 20 attended an evening prayer meeting.

The crime is alleged to have taken place at about 2.30 a.m. on the morning of July 21. It is suggested that the accused entered the floor and stabbed both the deceased man and girl through the heart. The woman was heard to cry out and the male deceased managed to get to the window but collapsed there. The accused left the dagger on the window sill and escaped in the process of which he knocked against and broke the rear window of the ground floor of No. 211.

This roused the occupant who said, "what's the matter?"—a male voice replied, "Fire on the third floor". In the meantime the people on the third floor had broken down the door and found the dead bodies and a broken rice bowl by the dead man's feet. Various steps were taken by the Police which will come out in evidence, but finally the man was taken to the Shamshui Police Station and left temporarily in the doorway in charge of a constable who had no knowledge of the murder. There he was heard by the constable, who did not speak to him, to say aloud to himself words amounting to a confession. The constable wrote down what he had heard immediately afterwards. The accused was taken to the Kowloon Hospital and detained until August 14. He was charged the same day and made a long statement which I shall put in.

Medical Evidence

After Dr. R. S. Begbie, Acting Government Bacteriologist had given evidence Dr. J. T. Smalley, Senior Medical Officer at the Kowloon Hospital said that at 4.45 a.m. on July 21 he examined a Chinese male adult Keung Tsze-pan, aged about 25.

Dr. J. B. Mackie, Medical Officer in charge of the Kowloon Public Mortuary gave evidence on post mortem examinations made on the two deceased.

After further evidence had been recorded, the hearing was adjourned until Tuesday next at 2.30 p.m.

SON OF A SAILOR

"Son of a Sailor" was the latest picture of Joe E. Brown, movie star with the colossal mouth. Recently when the "President Coolidge" docked here it carried Brown, who was found on the bridge acting as skipper of the vessel. When the "President Coolidge" arrived yesterday, its crew personnel included Don Brown, son of the picture star, who is trying the life of a sailor as a cadet.

TEXTILE STRIKE THREAT IN AMERICA

Support By Labour President

Washington, Aug. 30. The President of the American Labour Federation, Mr. William H. Green, in a broadcast address, gave approval to the threatened textile strike as justifiable because the Textile Code has not realised the pro-labour purposes of the N.R.A.—Reuter.

terday, its crew personnel included Don Brown, son of the picture star, who is trying the life of a sailor as a cadet.

"TOWN TALK"

LIQUID SILVER POLISH AND SILVER PLATE CLOTH

House wives who use "Town Talk" invariably speak of the "Pleasure" they take in cleaning their Silverware, for the cleanliness and ease with which it is used exclude any possibility of the work becoming laborious, dirty or irksome.

In addition, the deep rich shine of mirror-like brilliance it imparts is positively unequalled, but more important than all else of the particular housewife, is the fact that "Town Talk" does not, in fact cannot, injure cherished ornaments; that it can even be used to clean her Silver Plate without fear of wearing away the plating.

THE HOUSING PROBLEM

Siegfried Sassoon wrote in one of his books that "life for the majority of the population is an unlovely struggle against unfair odds." Next to insecurity in respect of work and wages, there is no condition in life which produces so unlovely a struggle against odds for the poorer classes in Great Britain as bad houses and overcrowding, but under pressure of public opinion, the problem has been gone into thoroughly and a committee, under the chairmanship of Lord Amulree has issued a report recommending a scheme for organised national action which is not unlike that which President Roosevelt proposes for the United States. The question may be said to be divided into three different categories. First and foremost are the slums or the dwellings which are not fit to be lived in but which nevertheless exist because the tenants have no other places to go to. In this connection the present government has acted in an exemplary manner, initiating a five year plan for slum clearance. Then we have the question of overcrowding and it is understood that this question will be thoroughly dealt with in the autumn. Last but not the least we have the provision of new houses for the expanding needs of the lower-paid workers, in sufficient numbers and at a rent within their means. It is estimated that at least a million houses will be needed during the next ten years. The Government had hoped that this would be met by private enterprises, but Lord Amulree's commission have gone into the question as well as a committee appointed by the Labour Party and the answer by both of them is in the negative. How, then, can it be done? Public opinion is deeply disturbed about the conditions under which the poor are living, and will not tolerate neglect. The problem is that of constructing at least 1,000,000 new houses. Not for sale, but to let at inclusive rents of 10 shillings a week and under. It cannot be solved by private enterprise building for profit. It could, perhaps, be solved by local authorities erecting houses with the help of a Government subsidy. But at an immense cost. The committee, therefore, has examined the proposal for the establishment of a statutory National Housing Commission, and declares it to be the right machinery for dealing with this gigantic task. The body it proposes would not itself build and own houses, but would provide cheap capital for financing schemes; it would be the medium for the supply of cheap and standardized material, and suitable labour; it would advise, plan and coordinate, as the supreme housing authority for the whole country. Not only would the commission be in a position to supply capital cheaply, but also, owing to its vast field of operation, cheap materials—there would be no profiteering; there would be mass production. Research would be stimulated; national needs would be surveyed; building throughout the country would be co-ordinated and directed without waste. This, then, is the comprehensive scheme, authoritatively commended, which is capturing the practical imagination of social reformers. The British Government has not accepted it, and has recently looked to private enterprise to solve this part of the problem. But it has shown in the last two years that it is singularly responsive to public opinion in the matter of housing, and for that reason the warm welcome that informed opinion has given to the national

"Despite A Broken Thumb"

(Special Air Mail Service)

London, Aug. 15.
Do you remember the injured thumb—owned by S. R. Leibbrandt, South Africa's light-heavy-weight representative in the Empire Games boxing? writes a correspondent. In 1932 he was boxing in the Olympic trials when he broke his thumb. That did not prevent his knocking out his opponent! Nothing but a steam-hammer, it would seem, is likely to stop him now.

He has grit and an uncommon amount of fist skill and ring experience, as those who watch the bouts at the Wembley arena on Wednesday night will see.

Leibbrandt comes from Pretoria. He was only 16 when he won the Orange Free State senior championship. Since he has collected a number of police and provincial titles at Johannesburg and Pretoria.

He has been working hard here with the assistance of Eddie Pierce and Dave Carstens—the latter was South Africa's Olympic Champion in 1932.

E. R. T. HOLMES FOR ENGLAND?

"One member at least of the Selection Committee has been at the Oval to see the Surrey and Notts match. It is believed that the inclusion of E. R. T. Holmes, the Surrey captain, in the final Test is quite a possibility. Holmes is a fine forcing batsman, an excellent fast-medium bowler, and an unusually safe first slip. It may be remembered that his bowling impressed the Australians considerably in their game against Surrey.

It is certain that few selections would cause more pleasure at the Oval than that of Holmes.

FOUR LINESMEN

"I hear to-day of a novel experiment proposed for the Watford football trial match next Saturday. Mr. Neil McBain, manager of the club, is seeking permission from the Football Association to employ four linesmen. He makes this case for the innovation: "This plan, in my opinion, is better than that of having a referee in each half of the field. There are enough men on the field with 22 players. "My idea is that two linesmen be deputed to each half of the field, and operate only in that section. A referee's lot would then be made easier. With four linesmen there should be no question of doubtful corner-kicks or fouls."

Surely it would be better if the two additional officials were made not just linesmen but corner-kick and goal-judges, with duties limited to the immediate neighbourhood of the goal-line. The other two could share the relatively unimportant work of regulating throw-ins in midfield.

"FORRY-EYE-TOO"

W. Wharealtu (pronounced Forry-eye-too), who is representing New Zealand in the swimming of the Empire Games at the Empire Pool and Sports Arena, Wembley, is the first Maori to swim for his country. "Bill," as he is more easily, if familiarly called, comes from Rotorua—the hot-spring district of the North Island—where the temperature of the water is normally something over 80 degrees Fahrenheit, and sometimes is at boiling point.

"Bill" is a real Maori, and descendant of a great chieftain. He lives in a hut of the type peculiar to his tribe, from which he issues forth on many occasions clad in the dinner-jacket of modern civilisation.

By calling he is an electrician, but he spends a great part of his time in the water.

housing plan makes it likely that the Ministry, even if it does not adopt this plan, will pursue some similar scheme having the same object and not less far-reaching.

STRAIGHT FROM THE SHOULDER

(By "NO QUARTER")

News has at last reached us of the plight of The Hon. Mrs. Marina, who was last week carried off into the interior by a gang of bandits. Mrs. Marina, it appears is suffering, the most horrible privations and indignities. She succeeded in smuggling out a letter concealed under the stomach of a Yak.

"The fifth," she writes, "is indescribable. The food is badly cooked, and they have no you-know-whats." The letter goes on to describe a scene of calculated brutality in which, at a banquet, the pirates forced Mrs. Marina to dance the Can Can in her bathing dress. What it can have cost such a woman is almost impossible to imagine.

Meanwhile the authorities are continuing the search, which will go on until Sunday. It will then unfortunately have to be abandoned, as an important Hockey League starts on that date.

AND DR. AUFANG

Dr. Aufang, who, you will remember, was last heard of drifting seawards in a vain attempt to rescue his wife Mrs. Marina, has come to earth in a small South American State. He was given a Royal reception. It is rumoured that he was accidentally shot in the stomach when the guard of honour presented arms, but accurate information is not yet available.

"KOPJE CAT"

On Monday I had the privilege of interviewing the famous African traveller "One legged" Waterbury, a man who has combed the continent from end to end. He is the author of many books, including "Africa layed Bare," "Naked Africa," "Sheiks on Shikar" and "Poisonous Snakes of the Congo." His latest venture is a film which he took, himself, entitled "Bring 'em up decent."

When I arrived, his room was already festooned with trophies. A tiger skin was on the floor and the walls were hung with the horns of dead dongas, mamaks, and wallas. "Where did you get that?" I asked, pointing to the tiger. "I found it in the waiting room at Waterloo Junction," he said. Then he went on: "I am going to write a book about Kopleks." "Kople Cat," I flashed back. "Waterbury did not laugh. I once heard Waterbury laugh, and it was not a pleasant thing."

NEWS AND COMMENTS FROM THE NORTH

JAPAN'S PLANS IN MANCHURIA

Annexation Rumours Discredited

In her desperate efforts to have "Manchukuo" recognized as an independent State, Japan has been using all kinds of influence—from diplomacy to blunt militarism, but so far she has not succeeded in achieving her desire. According to the "Sin Wen Pao," the essential object of the latest plan formulated by the Japanese Government is to reorganize its administrative organ in Manchuria under the direct control of the Cabinet. Such a change will involve abolition of the Governorship of the Kwangtung leased territory and transfer of the power vested in the military commander to the Ministry of Colonies. The Japanese "Ambassador" in Manchuria will be invested with supreme powers and functions over the South Manchuria Railway, and the commander of the Kwangtung Army will be concurrently Japanese "Ambassador" in Manchuria.

As a result of these changes, many believe that Manchuria will soon suffer the same fate as Korea, but the "Sin Wen Pao" does not believe Manchuria is likely to be severed in this way from its relations with China. The Korean people formed a distinct race by themselves, but the people of Manchuria are practically all Chinese, many of whom still have relatives inside the Great Wall. Moreover, Manchuria is the key to Far Eastern politics, and the whole world has been focussing its attention on that territory. The establishment of "Manchukuo" was not in accordance with the will of the people, but was a well-planned Japanese "incident." Furthermore, Manchuria is an integral part of China, whose standing is guaranteed by the Nine-Power Treaty and the Covenant of the League of Nations, so it is well-nigh impossible for Japan to annex Manchuria without very grave complications following in the world political situation.

The Shanghai Journal predicts that Japan will not be so foolish as to attempt to annex Manchuria. What she wants is to enjoy all privileges and exercise supreme power in that territory. So long as this can be done, it makes no difference to Japan if Manchuria remains nominally an "independent" state. Moreover, it is doubtful whether the Kwangtung Army will accept changes which are so detrimental to its political prestige in that territory.

Mr. N. C. Macgregor, Governor of the Straits Settlements, has arrived in Hong Kong from Shanghai by the Empress of Russia.

UPWARD MOVEMENT OF GOLD

London Price Eclipses All Records

London, Aug. 30. The London gold price eclipsed all records when approximately £345,000 changed hands at 140/3. The price was based on supply and demand including seven pence premium on the franc at 75½ and 2/2½ on the dollar at 5.03½. The previous record of 140/- was reached on February 2 this year.

Fears of further depreciation of the dollar with an almost inevitable corresponding movement in sterling and uncertainty in the ability of France to remain on gold are the principal factors of the recent upward movement of gold.

The weakening effect of seasonal demand for dollars is unhampered by exchange control whose funds are believed at present to be running low.—Reuter.

Shanghai, Aug. 26. According to information from local banking circles by the Cuckoo News Agency, a record silver shipment valued at nearly $3,000,000 departed from Shanghai on Friday by the steamer Tai Yang, destined partly for London and partly for New York. It has been ascertained that the exact amount of the shipment is $2,980,000 and the exporters are the National City Bank of New York and The Chase Bank.

Another shipment of unprecedented size amounting to $13,000,000 is reported to be in the course of packing and will leave Shanghai in the immediate future.

According to an investigation conducted by the Chinese banks, since the beginning of the year up to the present, a total sum of $130,000,000 comprising silver dollars, bar silver and sycee silver has been exported from Shanghai to foreign countries, the exports during the past several weeks being particularly heavy.

SALVATION ARMY

Feminine Uniform Disagreement

(Special to the "Hong Kong Daily Press").

(By Telegraph, Copyright, Telegraphic Messages Ordinance, 1894. Received, August 30, 4.30 p.m.)

London, August 30. The choice of a new Salvation Army leader to replace General Higgins is causing much greater difficulty than at first anticipated because of serious difference of opinion regarding the rules of the Salvation Army has broken out. A section of the delegates demands the modernization of the feminine army uniform, that is to say, abolition of the hooded hat and permission to wear silk stockings. The same section insists on the repeal of the ban on cinema-going, this restriction applying to all army members. These rigorous limitations are believed to be strenuously against the popularity of the Salvation Army, so that the reforms are considered urgent.

To settle the thorny problem, it has been decided to require all candidates for generalship to take up a clear attitude towards the questions raised, since the majority appear to be inclined to vote only for the candidate who is prepared to undertake to carry out forthwith the reforms which most of the members consider essential for the welfare of the future organization. This unexpected development will probably delay the choice of a new chief for some time.—Transocean Kuo Min.

VEIL OF SECRECY

London, Aug. 30. The secrecy surrounding the Salvation Army High Council discussions was partly relieved by Commissioner Carpenter at an interview.

"We are still nowhere near the nominations," he said. "We are still building up procedure on which the nominations will be based."

"We had disagreements in 1929, hence, this time we shall not hurry, but will build up permanent machinery on which all future elections will be based.—Transocean Kuo Min.

RICSHA RIOT CASE IN SHANGHAI

Alleged Ringleaders Convicted

Shanghai, Aug. 30. Two alleged ringleaders of the ricksha riot on August 10 each were sentenced to three months' imprisonment on charges of intimidation of public coolies in the Settlement by Judge Tseu in the First Special District Court this morning.

Notice of appeal was filed and they were released on $400 bond. Chu Hsu Chiao, veteran Y.M.C.A. worker, and two other accused were acquitted.

The "Shanghai Evening Post and Mercury" says that the demand filed by Mr. P. W. Massey, Chairman of the Shanghai Municipal Council Ricksha Board, with Mr. J. R. Jones, the Shanghai Municipal Council Secretary, for an ample "amende" by the Legal Department officials for introduction of testimonies accusing a Board member with graft during the case will be referred to Colonel Thomas T. Chou. Reuter.

A POLITICAL UNION

Latvia, Esthonia and Lithuania

(Special to "Hong Kong Daily Press").

(By Telegraph, Copyright, Telegraphic Messages Ordinance, 1894. Received, August 30, 4.30 p.m.)

Riga, August 30. The Latvian press halls with accord the conclusion last night of the political agreement between the three Baltic states, Latvia, Esthonia and Lithuania, close foreign political co-operation is provided for in the agreement.

The Balkan states engage themselves mutually to postpone negotiations with outside countries. This however, only refers to issues concerning the three Balkan states simultaneously. It does not cover the so-called social question, that is to say, which pertains to one of the three states only, namely, the issue affecting Lithuania is exempted from the terms of the agreement.

Jointly with the publication of the text of the treaty, the foreign political interests of the three countries are stressed by the newspapers. The treaty is to be ratified soon.—Transocean Kuo Min.

DEFENCE OF THE EMPIRE

The Air Problem

(Special Air Mail Service)

London, Aug. 15. One of the most important problems to be discussed by Sir Maurice Hankey on his Empire tour, will be that of Empire air defence.

At sea the old idea was that our three strategic points were Gibraltar and Suez to guard entrance and exit to the Mediterranean, and Singapore for our distant possessions.

Imperial air strategy is likely to be concerned a good deal with the Atlantic. We hold the key to any North Atlantic air service. It must come by way of Newfoundland and Ireland for any summer route, and by way of Bermuda for any winter deviation.

These are all British territory. Egypt will continue to be a vital link with Baghdad or Basra, as a second string. Singapore will in time be another great air base. Re-fuelling places on the route to Australia are vital alike in peace and war.

FOREIGNERS RELEASED

Ordered To Leave Germany

Berlin, Aug. 30.

The nine foreigners who were arrested on Saturday have been released on condition that they leave Germany immediately.

Those arrested were four Britons, two Frenchmen and three Spaniards. They reached Berlin after attending an anti-war and anti-Fascist Congress at Madrid to visit the labour camps. They were bathing at Wannsee, near Berlin, when arrested. Reuter.

THE GIANT CUNARD

Elaborate Plans For Launching Ceremony

London, Aug. 29.

Preparations for the launching of the giant Cunarder on the Clyde next month are well advanced and some of the staging surrounding the vessel have now been removed and its graceful lines are becoming apparent.

Three propellers are in position and the fourth will be secured within a week and a great mass of drag chains to check the strain of the launch are for the most part in position. The work of greasing the ways has been started, over 150 tons of tallow 50 tons of black soap and a ton of oil being used. A special suite of rooms is being created for the accommodation of the King and Queen who will attend the launch, including a dining room for 1,000 guests.

Special grandstands are being built to hold many thousands of spectators and enclosures are also being reserved for the public to witness the launch.—British Wireless.

TELEVISION AT WORK

Demonstration In Berlin

(Special to "Hong Kong Daily Press").

(By Telegraph, Copyright, Telegraphic Messages Ordinance, 1894. Received, August 30, 4.30 p.m.)

Berlin, August 30. The first television transmission was seen working on Wednesday in the gardens of the Reich's Broadcasting Company. This new apparatus is intended in future to record all important occurrences in picture and sound and transmit them to long distances at the same time. Those privileged to attend the demonstration were convinced of the rapidity and exactitude with which the instrument worked.

As each guest entered the garden the apparatus on the roof recorded the appearance and the sound of the visitor's approach. It was then immediately developed so that twenty five seconds later the guest saw and heard his own entry into the garden.

In this demonstration the transmission from the recording to the revealing apparatus was effected by wire but the apparatus will soon be provided with small sending equipment rendering connection with the upper floor, so that the sound film will be shown on the screen without the aid of conducting cables. The pictures on Wednesday were perfectly sharp, and free from flicker.—Transocean Kuo Min.

UPTON SINCLAIR ELECTED

As Candidate For Governorship

Mr. Upton Sinclair has been elected by a huge majority as Democratic candidate for the forthcoming contest for the Governorship of California.

The famous author, who was born in Baltimore, Maryland, in September 1878, exposed conditions in the American meat-packing industry and assisted President Roosevelt in investigations which led to reforms. He was Socialist candidate for Congress in 1906 and 1920, and Socialist Party candidate for U.S. Senate, California, in 1922. In 1928 and 1930 he was Socialist candidate for the Governorship of California.

Among his earlier publications are Springtime and Harvest, King Midas, The Journal of Arthur Stirling, Prince Hagen, Manassas, a Novel of the War, 1904, The Book of Life, appeared in 1921, followed by They Call Me Carpenter.

Upton Sinclair presents William Fox and The Way Out were last year's works.

THE ROYAL COUPLE

Overwhelmed With Congratulations

London, Aug. 29.

Exceptional interest has been aroused in the announcement of Prince George's engagement to Princess Marina of Greece. They left Salzburg to-day in company with Prince and Princess Paul of Yugoslavia whose guests they will be at their Villa on the shores of Lake Bled. Prince George was at the wheel of the car in which he and his fiancée travelled and his hosts followed in another car. Their Highnesses have been overwhelmed with congratulations on their betrothal and the King and Queen who are in residence at Balmoral Castle have also received many messages of congratulations to-day.

No official announcement of the date of the wedding is made but the Press anticipates that it will take place in London, probably in Westminster Abbey in the late autumn and precedents are being examined regarding the procedure.

The formal consent to the marriage will be given by an Order in Council following which arrangements for the wedding will be made under the direction of the Duke of Norfolk as Earl Marshall. Meanwhile it is anticipated that Prince George will return to London in about a week or ten days and that Princess Marina will pay a short visit to London as the guest of the King and Queen.—British Wireless.

THE AUSTRALIANS' TOUR

Croom And Santall Bat Well

(Special Air Mail Service)

London, Aug. 15. With four wickets down in their second innings the Australians hold a lead of 227 runs in their match with Warwickshire at Birmingham.

After a keen struggle the Australians established a first innings lead of 42. Warwickshire did quite well considering that, overnight they lost three wickets for 20 runs. The pitch did not appear to be affected by rain during the night, and Croom, driving vigorously, played good cricket. Croom lost Bates with the score up to 57, but he reached his 50 including nine 4's in a little over an hour and a half. Having added a single he went out to Grimmett and was cleverly stumped at 79, while R. E. S. Wyatt was leg-before-wicket after batting half an hour for only nine runs.

With Santall in another 50 runs were scored in less than three-quarters of an hour, but the Rev. J. H. Parsons failed to settle down, and was in for half an hour while scoring six. P. Cranmer, however, straight drove Fleetwood-Smith for 6 and drove Grimmett for 4 in fine style. Santall completed an admirable 50 after batting three-quarters of an hour. In 10 minutes after lunch another 22 runs were scored, and then Santall, having batted for just over an hour and hit six 4's, was bowled. The innings ended soon afterwards for 179.

The Australians began very quietly in their second innings. Brown taking 10 minutes to get the run he wanted to complete his 1,000 for the tour. It was not until the score had reached 85 that the Warwickshire attack met with success, and then Brown had his leg stump knocked back by Mayer.

LANCASHIRE RACE THE CLOCK

Lancashire took the lead in the country championship race by their splendid victory over Middlesex in the match at Old Trafford.

Haig, the Middlesex captain, made a sporting declaration to leave Lancashire 24 hours to score 167—a task achieved five minutes from time.

At first Lancashire were faced with the possibility of defeat, for in forcing the pace they lost four wickets in half an hour for 45. With Tyldesley carrying his bat for 98, and Hopwood sharing with the veteran in a stand of 123 in ninety minutes the run was stopped and victory made certain.

Earlier, Middlesex had lost eight wickets for 164, but Webster and Tindall added 45 in forty minutes without defeat. Webster, with five 4's, batted 1hr 50min, and in the match he obtained 88 without being dismissed.

SEVENTH-WICKET STAND SAVES SUSSEX

When Sussex lost six batsmen with only 84 on the board, they seemed set for defeat in the match with Kent at Hastings. H. Parks and Hammond came to the rescue, however, with a seventh wicket stand of 95, and though Sussex failed to gain the lead the county was saved from an even more serious set-back to their championship hopes.

Hammond stayed ninety minutes, hitting nine 4's, and Parks batted nearly three hours, his best scoring strokes being two 6's and seven 4's.

All the interest had gone out of the game when Kent, who had declared at their overnight score, went in again. In what was little more than batting practice, the visiting county scored 118 for the loss of three wickets.

ESSEX BOWLER FIT AGAIN

Brilliant bowling by Kenneth Farnes, who took eight wickets in the match for 30 runs, helped Essex to gain first innings points at Northampton. Declaring at their overnight score of 322 for eight wickets, Essex dismissed Northants in two and three-quarter hours for 102. The match was left drawn when Northants, who followed on 220 behind, lost three more wickets for 20.

Farnes showed that he is absolutely fit again after his break-down in the Lord's Test. At times he was almost unplayable on a rain-damaged pitch, and he bowled with such pace and direction that he hit the stumps on five occasions in Northants' first innings. Farnes often made the ball get up head high, and claimed the first five wickets that fell for 16 runs, 11 maidens, 30 runs, 8 wickets.

VOICE UNABLE TO BOWL

Voce, the leg-theory bowler of Nottingham, who took eight Australian wickets for 66 runs on Saturday, was unable to bowl against them yesterday.

It was announced that Voce had aggravated his shin trouble on Saturday. He was examined by a doctor, who advised Voce not to take any further part in the match.

Not knowing of this, the Nottingham crowd continued to call for Voce for some time to-day.

Demonstration

He was able to bowl only two overs yesterday before rain stopped play.

Voce's bowling success against the Australians made him a Test possible, but in the list of 14 men invited to go to the Oval for the last Test beginning on Saturday, Voce's name did not appear.

The Nottingham crowd, resenting the non-inclusion during the game yesterday.

While the Australian cricketers will be resting quietly at their hotel in preparation for the strain of the "timeless" Test—their only engagement before the Test is a one-day match against the Army at Aldershot, to-morrow—the majority of England's representatives will be taking part in struggles for County Championship points.

Yorkshire Grit

Among others, England's captain, R. E. S. Wyatt, will be playing for Warwickshire against Glamorgan at Birmingham. Hammond is turning out against Sussex at Cheltenham, and the Yorkshire contingent—Sutcliffe, Leyland and Verity—will be engaged in the Worcestershire game at Bradford. Bowes, however, is not included in the side.

The Yorkshiremen will, therefore, have to travel the two hundred miles or so to London on Friday to take part in the final Test beginning next day.

HIGH SCORING AT BRISTOL

There was some high scoring at Bristol yesterday when Gloucestershire, for whom Hammond scored 302 not out, increased their total of 468 for six wickets to 803 without further loss and Glamorgan made 244 for the loss of only two wickets.

Hammond has been in such remarkable form lately for his county that in his last seven County Championship innings, in two of which he was not out, he has scored no fewer than 1,293 runs with the amazing average of 258.6. His score yesterday was his best for the county. When he had scored 224 Hammond made his first mistake, being missed by Mercer at mid-off. He completed 250 in a little over five hours and afterwards hit even more freely, punishing Lavis for six and then getting four 4's in one over from Smart. Altogether he hit three 6's and 30 4's. Although completely overshadowed, Neale also gave a fine display while helping Hammond put on 135 in 70 minutes.

AIR MANOEUVRES IN FRANCE

(Special to the "Hong Kong Daily Press" (Copyright).)

Paris, Aug. 29.

One hundred and seventy six reconnoitering and bombing planes will swoop down on the aviation ground in Le Bourget on the dawn of Thursday, converging from Metz, Nancy, Luxeuil and Ochey while 290 planes, stationed at Chartres Etampes will take up the defence.

General Denain and the general staff of the aviation forces will follow the air manoeuvres from Le Bourget.

FOOTBALL LAWS

"Regulation" Boots

LAW 12.—BARS STUDS ETC.

A player shall not wear any nails, except such as have their heads driven in flush with the leather, or metal plates or projections, or gutta-percha, on his boots, or on his shin guards. If bars or studs are used, they shall have all their fastenings driven in flush with the leather. Bars shall be transverse and flat, not more than half an inch in width, and shall extend from side to side of the boot. Studs shall be round in plan, not less than half an inch in diameter, and in no case conical or pointed. Any player whose boots are found not conforming with this LAW shall be sent off the field of play and not allowed to return without first reporting to the Referee, who will satisfy himself that the boots are satisfactory.

A PLAYER HAVING LEFT THE FIELD OF PLAY THROUGH THIS OR ANY OTHER CAUSE, MAY ONLY RETURN WHEN THE BALL HAS CEASED TO BE IN PLAY, AND MUST REPORT TO THE REFEREE. The Referee, shall, if required, examine the players' boots before the commencement of a match or during the interval.

OFFICIAL DECISIONS:—

Wearing soft india-rubber on the soles of the boots is not a violation of LAW 12. (International Board).

Semi-circular toe-pieces are legal.

Metal toe-plates, though covered by leather are illegal.

A player returning to the field of play after boot repairs without reporting to the Referee should be cautioned; if he commits an offence apart from that, he should be penalised according to the law. (International Board, June 13, 1931.)

INSTRUCTIONS TO REFEREES:—

It is the Referee's duty, if asked, to examine the players' boots before the match, or during the interval. The Referee must order off the field of play any player whom, during the progress of the game, he finds wearing:

(a) Nails not flush with the leather.

(b) Metal plates or projections.

(c) Gutta-percha on his boots, or on his shin guards.

(d) Bars on soles heels of his boots that do not extend from side of the boot, that are less than half an inch wide, more than half an inch deep, and not transverse and flat.

INSTRUCTION TO REFEREES

(e) Studs on soles or heels of his boots, not round in plan, less than half an inch in diameter, more than half an inch deep, and conical or pointed.

During the progress of the game the Referee must enforce this LAW without waiting for an appeal. There is no necessity to report this offence.

The LAW includes metal clips or buckles, etc., that are dangerous, either on the boots or shin guards.

INSTRUCTIONS TO PLAYERS:—

It is also the duty of the players to see that their boots, etc., are in accordance with this LAW, for if the Referee's attention is drawn to the irregularity during the progress of a game the player may be sent off and his services temporarily lost to his side. If doubtful about it, ask the Referee before the match, or during the interval, and he is bound to examine the boots. Players sometimes forget that studs wear away exposing the nails, which would make them illegal.

A PLAYER WHO HAS LEFT THE FIELD OF PLAY THROUGH ANY CAUSE, MAY ONLY RETURN WHEN THE BALL HAS CEASED TO BE IN PLAY, AND MUST REPORT TO THE REFEREE.

BEFORE HE RESUMES PLAY AFTER BOOT REPAIRS HE MUST ASK THE REFEREE TO EXAMINE HIS BOOTS (SEE OFFICIAL DECISION ON LAW 12).

Cause and Effect

They had just become engaged. "I shall—boys," she cooed, "to share all your troubles." "But, darling," he murmured, "I have none." "No," she agreed, "but I mean when we are married."

ROTARY CUP TENNIS

America and China Lead

Shanghai Aug. 26.

Under a boiling hot sun, the first singles matches between Japan and America, and China and Great Britain, took place yesterday at the Shanghai Tennis Club courts on Route County, the winners in each case taking their points fairly easily. America took both the singles matches, L. D. Carson defeating Machida by 6-4, 6-4, 8-6 in the best contest of the day, while C.C. Squires beat Sudo 6-3, 6-1, 4-6, 6-2. China in like manner secured a lead over Great Britain when V. T. Wong defeated J. G. Forbes by 6-3, 6-1, 3-1, and Guy Cheng accounted for L. F. Stokes 6-4, 6-1, 6-3.

Under the existing system of play in the Rotary Cup competition, the teams will meet in the doubles matches which take place this afternoon, and the cross over singles will take place early next week. Indication show that China and America should go through to the final, though Great Britain is favoured to better China in the doubles this afternoon when M. Benavitch and W.A.H. Duff meet Gordon Lum and Khoo Hoo-hye. America and Japan will meet in a similar manner with Carson and Squires playing against J. Kamada and Tsukiji.

Driving Duels

The matches yesterday brought several interesting driving duels, the most notable being those between Carson and Machida, the latter taking the incentive on most occasions but finding his opponent quite equal to the task of sending back any shot with equal power. Carson was the steeper of the two and his overhead work was delightfully effective, his smashes from midcourt being point gaining shots on every occasion. Towards the end of the matches, he came up to the net and scored on every occasion. Machida revealed a powerful forehand drive and forced the pace, but found Carson quite equal to all he could send over. In the other match, Squires proved erratic, Sudo was definitely the better of the two players, Sudo being prominent with several long drives, but failing in short cross court shots.

The Chinese players proved too good for the British representatives, who however put up a good display. Forbes, who is a vastly improved player this season, showed great steadiness against Wong and though beaten in three straight sets, was able to contend on equal terms with the Chinese star. In the third set, Forbes was four games up and looked like taking a set, but he fell down thereafter and allowed his opponent to win. In the other match Cheng and Stokes indulged in some powerful driving duels, with the former coming off best. Stokes' services were very effective, but he was kept on the defensive for the majority of play.

Hold Their Hockey Meeting

At the annual meeting of the Y.M.C.A. Ladies' Hockey Section held yesterday evening in the West Lounge of the Y.M.C.A. Miss O. Brown, was re-elected captain of the first eleven, while Miss S. Dalziel was elected vice-captain.

Miss A. Fowler who has held the post of Hon. Secretary since 1932 was re-elected.

The Hon. Secretary in her report on the 1933-34 season said that the Ladies' Hockey Club had enjoyed a very successful season. They had been "unfortunate" in losing several members of the first team owing to illness and home leave. Of 36 matches played, 19 were won, 4 were drawn and 13 were lost. Goals "for" were 59 while there were only 48 goals "against" which was quite a fair performance.

In conjunction with the Men's and Hockey Section, a dance was held in November last to mark the opening of the Y.M.C.A. Hockey season.

The "Y" Ladies Hockey Section completed their season with a cash balance of $85. The thanks of the Y.M.C.A. Ladies' Hockey Section were extended to the Head Mistress of the D'Ossian Girls' School for the use of the D.G.S. hockey ground, Mr. E. F. Selk for services rendered as coach during the last season, the Y.M.C.A. Men's Hockey Section and others who had helped towards the success of the Ladies Section.

Mrs. M. Read and Mrs. M. Porttallion were elected to serve on the Committee. Mr. G. T. Palmer accepted the invitation to coach the "Y" Ladies during the ensuing year.

FRED PERRY TURNS DOWN OFFER

Rye, N.Y., Aug. 29.

Fred Perry, Wimbledon tennis champion, has refused an offer of $50,000 to turn professional. The offer was made by Bill O'Brien, manager of the Tilden troupe.

Perry advanced two reasons for his refusal, firstly, that he would have to pay nearly half his earnings in taxes, and secondly, that he would be ostracised from virtually every English Club.

THE CYCLING CLUB

New 25-Mile Record

The Hong Kong Cycling Club were fortunate in the selection of Wednesday evening for the sixth of their series of weekly time trials, though only two riders took advantage of the ideal weather conditions prevailing at the time.

At 5.35 p.m. E. Tweedy, making his fourth attempt over the distance, commenced an attack on the 25 miles figures of 1 hr. 21 mins. 45 secs. held by himself. Though handicapped by a fully equipped machine Tweedy succeeded in reaching the halfway point at an average speed a little slower than 20 m.p.h. A light breeze which had hindered slightly on the outward trip made the homeward run speedier with the result that Tweedy pedalled past the timekeeper to record the astonishing time of 1 hr. 14 mins. 15 secs. His average speed of 20.20 m.p.h. denotes an improvement of almost 2 m.p.h. in the past fortnight, and as the rider finished in a very fresh condition it now appears quite probable that with a properly "tuned" machine this rider will find no difficulty in reducing the Shanghai figures of 1 hr. 7 mins. 4 secs. (22.365 m.p.h.).

A few minutes after Tweedy had been started by Mr. E. Munns, the Club's official timekeeper, C. I. Read began his attack on J. Coles' week-old 5 miles figures of 14 mins. 35 secs. This was Read's first speed attempt since his recent illness, and he returned the very creditable time of 15 mins. 17 secs. to average 19.82 m.p.h.

The progress shown by E. Tweedy, who is a first-year novice, is very gratifying to those Club officials who have been concerned with the commencement of his racing. Further improvement is a certainty in this young rider's future attempts, and the steady advance in speed together with his keen enthusiasm augurs well for his adoption of the sport on returning to England.

Hall ("A" Coy).

Inter-Company Shield: H. Q. Wing 48 points; "B" Coy. 37½ points; "A" Coy. 31½ points; "C" Coy. 25 points; "D" (S) 10½ points.

DOUMERGUE'S
RETURNKindles Political Activity

[Special to the "Hong Kong Daily Press" (Copyright.)]

Paris, Aug. 29.
With Doumergue's return to Paris on Wednesday, intensified political activity has recommenced. Many important matters require the most urgent attention.

When Doumergue's train arrived from Tournefeuille near Toulouse, the Premier found many Cabinet ministers awaiting him, also a number of high State officials.

As soon as the Premier reached the Quai d'Orsay, he began work immediately, first holding a long conversation with President Lebrun, about all home and foreign political questions in abeyance and then received in turn a number of ministers, conversing at considerable length with the Finance Minister, German Martin, about the budget for 1935 which will probably be submitted to the financial committee of the Chamber and the Senate on September 15, so that it may be passed into law before the end of this year.

Finally, the Premier talked with the Minister of Justice, Chéron, about the course of investigation in the Stavisky affair and the mysterious case of the murdered official named Prie.

SMUGGLERS
FOUND OUTGigantic Plot
In Turkey

[Special to the "Hong Kong Daily Press" (Copyright.)]

Istanbul, Aug. 29.
A gigantic organisation consisting mostly of foreigners that has for long past been carrying on smuggling with conspicuous success, has just been discovered by the Turkish authorities. The band is believed to be over several hundred strong of whom two hundred have already been arrested. The concern owns no less than 23 steamers and a capital of several million Turkish pounds.

The organiser and leader is a certain Diogonow, a Persian by birth, but Russian by naturalisation. The business is chiefly concerned with smuggling into Turkey, foreign currencies, vast quantities of which were seized by the police in Diogonow's house.

The total loss to the Turkish treasury is estimated at many millions of Turkish pounds.

GERMAN PROTESTS

[Special to the "Hong Kong Daily Press" (Copyright.)]

Copenhagen, Aug. 29.
At the Ecumenical Council meeting on Wednesday, the German delegation protested emphatically against reports of proceedings at Fano appearing in the world Press especially that information about confidential sittings being divulged. The German delegation also protested strongly to the sensational character of this reporting whereby German ecclesiastical and political matters were treated in an entirely one-sided manner, the ostensible object being to create an atmosphere in Fano that would influence the result of the conference thus depriving the negotiations of absolutely essential inner freedom.

The German delegation concluded by appealing to the President of the Ecumenical Council to take steps to ensure perfectly the objective of the reporting of these proceedings. The President promised that this would be done.

MOVE TO INNER
HARBOUROrder to Wharf
Owners

[From Our Special Correspondent]

Canton, August 30.
Workers constructing the Inner Harbour at Chow Tou Chui opposite Shamen are ordered by the municipal authorities to speed up the work, so that it will be ready for river steamers to anchor there by October 1.

The Canton Municipal Government has notified the steamship companies with wharves at West Bund off the General Post Office to move their vessels to the Inner Harbour on October 1. If construction work cannot be completed in time, the shipping companies will be glad to continue using their present wharves.

Although the vernacular Press here repeatedly stated that the steamship companies concerned are ready to use the new wharves at the Inner Harbour, they are really reluctant to give up their wharves on the West Bund, which is the most convenient place in the city. They are located in front of the Custom House with many first class hotels nearby.

West Bund is nearest to Salkwan, the wealthy residential section, while it is within easy communication from all parts of the city. The companies having wharves there are the Hong Kong Canton and Macao Steamboat Company, Ltd., and the Tung On Steamship Company, Ltd., both being registered at Hong Kong. Each company has two wharves. Six of the vessels are on the Canton-Hong Kong run, and two are on the Canton-Macao run. Only these two companies are affected by the requirement to move to the Inner Harbour.

The Inner Harbour is not convenient for passengers and shippers, and therefore the two companies are not enthusiastic about the change. Passengers who take a steamer to Hong Kong or Macao will have to go through the trouble of hiring a sampan to convey them to the Inner Harbour. Macao steamers are not affected, as there is no other competition. But Hong Kong passengers will in future find it more convenient to travel by train.

EAST RIVER
FLOODSWaichow Suffers
Heavily

[From Our Special Correspondent]

Canton, August 30.
In view of the devastating flood in the East River towns, the Kwangtung Board of River Conservancy to-day held a meeting with respect to the repair of the broken dykes and the dredging of the shallow parts of the river.

Waichow, an important town on the East River, is suffering heavily by the flood which rose as high as fourteen feet. Other towns along the East River are in similar plight. It is said that many people were drowned, although the exact figures are not available. This calamity is due to unusually heavy rainfall during the middle part of the month.

An official of the Kwangtung Board of River Conservancy said to-day that the flood at East River is not receding as quickly as expected. Until the flood has gone down, it is impossible to go on with the conservancy work. He said that the repair of the dykes would cost over one million dollars.

The flood has played havoc with telegraphic communications between Canton and the inundated area, while the highways are also submerged and unfit for motor traffic. In some places the flood rises so high that the people live on the mountains.

Charitable institutions here and in Hong Kong are planning to send relief to the flood victims. There have been many appeals for help from the public bodies in the flooded areas. It is feared that the crops have been destroyed.

Simon, will proceed to Geneva later and will lead the British delegation at the Assembly of the League which meets on September 16.

CURRENT NEWS FROM CHINA

KWANGSI NOTES

Wonderful Panorama
Over Mountainside

Shanghai, August 28.
Among the thousands of miles of motor roads operating throughout the province of Kwangsi the section running from Hochih to Nantun on the Kwangsi-Kweichow highway is by far the most picturesque, surpassing all others in its natural beauty and has deservedly acquired the name of Kwangsi's Scenic Highway.

The road runs through a wild mountainous area occupied largely by Chwang tribesmen and formerly not too safe for travel. Lonely stretches of country are traversed, towering hills climbed, deep ravines passed over, and foaming torrents crossed, and through the entire length of the journey of 96 English miles the traveller has thrills innumerable and constant surprises that such innumerable difficulties have been overcome, and such engineering skill shown in the surveying and laying of this magnificent road.

The work on the road, commenced April 1, 1933, and soon crude grass shelters had been erected all along the section through which the road was to run and 10,000 workmen were busy with pick and shovel digging away the loose surface earth, while the mountains echoed with the steady tick of steel drills as stone masons prepared to blast away the mountain sides, and the deafening roars of exploding powder sounded through the hills from one end of the line to the other. So rapidly was the work pushed forward that within ten months buses could travel the full length of the road though the official opening did not take place until January of this year.

Nature Of The Road
The road is 40 feet wide and has a surface dressing of finely crushed stone which makes the road quite serviceable even in the rainy season. Besides a number of bridges with level spans there are 58 arched bridges, 46 single arch, nine double arch, and one triple arch, and in addition there are 538 stone culverts for draining purposes. The bridges vary in width from eighteen to 24 feet according to the requirements at the place where the bridge is built the minimum width being eighteen feet. These bridges are practically all made of stone reinforced with steel girders and laid in cement. Each bridge has engraved upon it the name of the contractor, the date of building, and the cost of erection.

Buses make a daily run from Kingyuan to Luchai on the Kwangsi border, and return over the same route the following day. As a rule buses reach Hochih about ten a.m. Here a short stop is made to take on passengers and then the journey is resumed. After a seven mile run up a very gradual ascent the Ta-Shan-Tang mountain, the highest peak over which the road runs. The engineering work here is excellent. The road winds, bends and curves up the sides of the mountain on a gradual grade of twelve degrees and after slowly climbing 850 feet the summit is reached and a panoramic view of the surrounding country is obtained. It is a sea of hills; peaks in bewildering confusion rise on every side and the traveller wonders how the bus is going to descend the mountain or get through the endless hills to the lower levels again. The descent however is most gradual.

Making The Descent
Graceful curves, and sloping grades with a few sharp turns here and there and the bus once more is among the foot hills purring along a level road to the next stopping place. After a run of approximately twenty miles Seven-Li Hill looms in view and the ascent of 385 feet is made by gradual curves. When the highest point on the hill is finally reached away off in the distant lowlands can be seen the small town of Ch'ao-ho on the banks of the Wild Chicken River. This stream is not navigable. In former years, before the motor road was put through, it had to be repeatedly forded by the coolies carrying merchandise to and from Kweichow. In the rainy season it became a raging torrent and annually claimed its toll of lives of those drowned while trying to ford the stream. Another twenty miles of fairly level highway and the towering top of Old Tush Mountain comes in view. This is a great granite boulder whose sides have been blown to pieces

SOCIAL WORKER

Dr. G. Sherwood
Eddy

Shanghai, Aug. 28.
Dr. Sherwood Eddy, writer, speaker, and social worker, is due in Shanghai on September 4 on the ss. Conte Rosso. Dr. Eddy comes to China at the invitation of the National Committee of the Young Men's Christian Association to be engaged for a period of four months in speaking to audiences of youths in sixteen cities throughout the country.

This is Dr. Eddy's ninth visit to China. His interests are international. After having spent fifteen years at his own expense serving as secretary of the Young Men's Christian Association in India, he served for nine years as secretary for all Asia where he worked among students and in centres of political, industrial and social life in the Near and Far East. In 1915 Dr. Eddy served as Y.M.C.A. secretary with the British army, later serving, in the same capacity with the American army at the front. Following the armistice he co-operated in raising many thousands of dollars for the relief of the German people in the Ruhr.

Dr. Eddy will spend two weeks in Shanghai, Nanking, Nanchang and Peking interviewing individual and group leaders in educational business, political and religious circles, endeavouring to orient himself to the most recent trends and tendencies in Chinese thought and development. He will then begin his lectures in Tientsin on September 18. The cities to be included in his itinerary during the next four months are as follows:

North China: Tientsin, Peking, Peotnfu and Talyuanfu, Lunghai Region; Kaileng and Chengchow. West China: Chungking and Chengtu. Central China: Changsha and Nanchang. East China: Shanghai, Hangchow and Ningpo. South China: Amoy, Hong Kong and Canton.

GRAND CINEMA MAY BE SOLDCreditors Requesting
Liquidation

Shanghai, Aug. 28.
Acting on behalf of British and American creditors of the United Theatres, Inc., Messrs. Franklin and Harrington have filed with the clerk of the U. S. Court for China a motion for the sale of the Grand Theatre. The case will be heard by Judge Milton J. Helmick on Monday, September 3.

The motion, which was filed on behalf of Messrs. Andersen, Meyer & Co., Ltd., and Messrs. Arnold & Co., Ltd., both of whom allege that they are holders of unsatisfied liens against the Grand Theatre, ask also that the business of United Theatres, Inc., owners of the Grand Theatre, be liquidated. It will be remembered that the difficulties of the Grand Theatre were first made public a few weeks after the opening, and Mr. Ralph W. Peters was appointed by the U. S. Court for China as receiver for the holders of the liens. It is now claimed that the monthly reports of the receiver, filed with the court, show that the profits made during this time have not been sufficient to meet the interest on the outstanding obligations of the United Theatres, Inc.

The men holders have therefore requested an order authorizing the sale of the assets of United Theatres, Inc., and liquidation of their business.

In order to make the ram's horn ascent up its rocky sides. The climb starts with a graceful horseshoe curve, and then begins a spiral ascent which continues until after climbing for nearly 700 feet the summit is reached. Then a gradual slide downward of 120 feet over a six-mile run and the car glides into Nantun, a small prefectural city—the last on the run to the Kweichow border. Here new public highway offices and garages have been erected and a staff of polite and efficient officers are in charge who seem to take pleasure in catering to the needs of the travelling public and who do their best to make the journey both comfortable and pleasant.

REDS DESPERATE

Government Advised
To Use Bombers

Nanking, Aug. 28.
A greater use of bombing planes and artillery, further tightening of the economic blockade against the Red areas, and the building of more blockhouses at various vulnerable points will be the most effective military measures against the Communist forces in Kiangsi.

This statement was made by Kung Ho Chung, formerly an important Red commander but now one of the counsellors to General Chiang Kai Shek, in a speech delivered at the Generalissimo's headquarters, in Nanchang on Monday last.

Kung surrendered to the Government troops on July 27. He joined the Chinese Communist Party in 1927, and at the time he gave himself up he was commander-in-chief of the Communists' 6th group army and a member of the Communist C.E.C.

The former Red commander told the staff of General Chiang's headquarters that aerial and artillery bombardments had inflicted heavy casualties upon the Communist forces and seriously undermined their morale. He suggested that Government commanders might make a greater use of the bombers and field pieces at their disposal.

The economic blockade against the Red areas, Kung related, had produced a most telling effect on the morale of the Communist troops. Salt and rice were most scarce in the Communist districts, and the relentless methods used by the Reds in commandeering food from the populace had engendered great public discontent and caused many people to flee from Communist control. Kung suggested that this blockade should be maintained by all means, and possibly also strengthened at some points like Kanchow, in southern Kiangsi, where food was still allowed to enter the Communist area.

Blockhouses Useful

Kung attested to the great utility of the blockhouses that the Government troops had erected around the dwindling Communist area. The line of blockhouses, he said, had crippled the activities of Red guerrillas, who had formerly been used with telling effect for harassing the Government lines. He thought that more blockhouses should be built, and urged that special efforts should be made to prevent the Communists from breaking through and escaping in the direction of Szechuen and Kweichow.

Aside from military tactics, the erstwhile Red commander emphasized the importance of propaganda as a means towards exterminating the Communists. He pointed out that the Communist regulars, numbering about 100,000 strong, had for years been fighting Government troops many times their strength. The reason why they had been able to hold up for so long he attributed to their intensive though deceiving propaganda among the populace. He urged the authorities to intensify their counter-propaganda among the 20,000,000 people in the Red districts, suggesting that leaflets distributed from the air should be written in the simplest language.

Regarding himself, he said that he had joined the Communists in 1927 with the idea of working for the welfare of the masses. After eight years' experience as a high Communist commander, he was now convinced that communism was impractical in China, and realized that the San Min Principles rather than Marxism afforded the way towards national salvation. He still cherished his former aim of working for the masses, but would exert himself in a different direction.

FURTHER GREAT HEAT

104 Degrees Reached: Record Almost Equalled

Shanghai, Aug. 26.

The second heat wave of the summer reached its greatest intensity to date yesterday, when the mercury soared to 104 degrees Fahrenheit, only 0.4 degrees lower than the all time record for this locality.

This tremendous heat was registered at Siccawel, but the Holy Trinity Cathedral instruments were not far behind; an even 100 degrees being recorded there. The maximum temperature was a sharp rise over the day's minimum, no less than 28.8 degrees difference being shown. The same date last year, also unusually warm for that season, registered 95 degrees, nine degrees less than yesterday.

Of interest are figures submitted to the "North-China Daily News" by readers. According to these, the rough average maximum temperature over the last 81 days up to Friday was 87 degrees at Sincawei and 95 degrees at the Cathedral. These figures would show that this year has had not only the breaking of the all time heat record on more than one occasion, but the breaking of the all time average heat during the summer months.

There also seems no doubt that the heat will continue, for the prospects are still unvaryingly "fine and hot." The typhoon which has been hovering some

MR. RUNCIMAN'S REVIEW

"No Full Recovery Without World Confidence"

(Special Air Mail Service)

London, Aug. 5.

In the course of a review of Britain's industrial position, in the House of Commons, Mr. Walter Runciman, President of the Board of Trade, emphasised the importance of world trade upon the home market.

He spoke of the value of the commercial agreements concluded with thirteen foreign countries, and said that in every case our exports had been increased as a result.

In the first six months of this year our exports totalled £190,000,000—an increase of £15,000,000 compared with the first six months of last year.

Our imports, on a similar comparison, increased £42,000,000 to £362,000,000.

The most notable increase in exports was in the woollen and worsted trades, the exports of which were £3,000,000 better for the first six months of this year compared with same period last year.

Exports of machinery increased during the same period by £2,000,000 and iron and steel exports were up by £2,000,000.

Cott a the Black Spot

He regretted that there had been no improvement in the cotton trade. It remained one of the most unfortunate of our great industries.

Exports of cotton yarns in 1932 were nearly £63,000,000. In 1933 they fell back to £59,000,000 and for the first six months of this year they were £29,000,000. He was hopeful that schemes now being debated in Lancashire might be productive of better results.

Iron and steel exports in the first half of this year were about £10,000,000, compared with £14,000,000 in the corresponding period last year.

Everybody knew that the best index to prosperity was in the figures of unemployment. There had been a decrease of unemployment in the engineering industry of about 28,600—a remarkable achievement.

13 Agreements

Mr. Runciman said he had signed 13 commercial agreements with other countries, and negotiations were proceeding with four other countries.

In every case, the agreements showed an increase in our exports into the countries affected.

The home market, said Mr. Runciman, was near saturation point, and though there had been a big reduction in unemployment figures they must have improvement in world trade to effect further big improvements. There were indications that the tendencies of international trade to decline were being arrested.

World trade was too much at the mercy of sudden political disturbances for any optimistic prophecy, but the essential conditions for trade revival were present if only it were possible to secure a general restoration of confidence abroad.

The Government had restored confidence at home and were now using their influence to assist the return of confidence abroad.

Mr. Runciman was moving the second reading of the Consolidated Fund (Appropriation) Bill.

A LONG WAY TO GO

Mr. Runciman's survey of our trade prospects will be carefully studied in the City and in all our industrial centres. He emphasises our dependence on a recovery in international trade to regain some of our lost commercial prosperity by pointing out that we must rely upon an improvement in the world's trade for an improvement in employment figures.

Unfortunately, the distressing events in Vienna this week must further retard that re-establishment of confidence so badly needed. As Mr. Runciman pointed out, our Government has secured the restoration of confidence at home. This coupled with the change in our fiscal system, explains the improvement we have so far enjoyed. It remains to be seen, however, how much further we can progress assisted by purely home factors.

Unfortunately, the economic situation in Central Europe, particularly in Germany, is in a parlous state.

Germany, in the past, ranked after the United States and this country as the third largest importer. The drastic restriction she has imposed on imports, if continued, may have far-reaching effects.

If, in coming months, a climax is reached, as at present appears possible, it must be reflected in our trade figures.

The Adverse Balance

With regard to our home trade, Mr. Runciman's remarks are encouraging.

At the same time, one must not overlook the fact that our adverse trade balance, which last year was

She will berth at the Dollar Wharf at about 6 a.m. and the first tender from the vessel is expected at the Customs Jetty at 8.30 a.m. The President Adams in on a round-the-world trip and is carrying a number of through passengers, besides several, who will be disembarking at Shanghai. The s.s. President Adams will continue her voyage on Tuesday.

S.S. Ivanhoe Arrives To-day
The Kaian Mining Administration s.s. Ivanhoe (chartered), which left Chinwangtao last Thursday, is expected in port to-day.

Empress of Canada Due

To-day

The Canadian Pacific liner s.s. Empress of Canada, 21,500 gross tonnage, is expected at Pootung to-day from Hongkong and Manila. She will berth at the Shanghai and Hongkong Pootung Wharf at about 1 p.m. It is anticipated that the first tender from the liner will arrive at the Customs Jetty at about 2.30 p.m. The s.s. Empress of Canada will sail for Victoria and Vancouver via Kobe, Yokohama, and Honolulu to-morrow. She will be despatched from the wharf at about 9.30 a.m. The last passenger tender to the boat will leave from the Customs Jetty at 8 a.m. Both heavy and light baggage will be handled by all outgoing tenders. Tenders will leave from the Customs Jetty today at 6 p.m., 10 p.m. and 12 p.m. The s.s. Empress of Russia, from Canadian and Japanese ports, is expected alongside the Shanghai and Hongkong Wharf at 5 a.m. to-morrow. On board are a number of passengers disembarking at Shanghai and also cargo and mail, both European and American. The s.s. Empress of Russia will continue her voyage to Hong Kong and Manila to-morrow evening. She will be sailing at about 10 p.m. The first tender to arrive at the Customs Jetty from the s.s. Empress of Russia will be about 8.45 a.m. The last tender leaving for the vessel to-morrow evening will be at 8.30 p.m.

so materially decreased, is now moving in the opposite direction. Our imports are increasing more rapidly than our exports.

The most encouraging part of Mr. Runciman's remarks is that dealing with iron and steel. Here definite headway is being made. Against this, however, we have the distressing fact that at present no immediate improvement is expected in the cotton trade.

Rise in Imports
Trade in this country has unquestionably improved, and we have every reason to be thankful it would, however, be foolish not to realise that we have still a long way to go. And that further improvement may depend very largely on factors over which we have no control—the international position, which at the moment is far from encouraging.

DRASTIC STAFF CUTS

Extensive changes in administration are following the merger of the Cunard White Star Steamship Lines, which is now being put into operation.

One of the most important results will be the concentration and amalgamation of certain of the offices. The White Star headquarters are in London, and the Cunard administration is centred in Liverpool. There is little doubt that Liverpool will be the headquarters of the merged company.

A batch of sealed envelopes which contained the long-awaited findings of good or bad news was received from the headquarters of the new company by the various branches. There was an envelope for every member of the staff, but the contents varied.

It was generally recognised that "outs" in staff would be made, and that where both interests had maintained individual offices in the past only one would be necessary in the future. It was, however, not thought that the reduction in personnel would be anything like as drastic as has now proved to be the case.

Many of those who would have expected to be retained in the senior clerical ranks have received notices that they will have to leave. Some of these notices were dated from September 1. In some cases men with 20 or 30 years

THE EXCHANGE MARKET

MESSRS. ROZA BROS. REPORT

Silver prices remained at the last quoted level of 21 9/18 for both deliveries. Sales were made for account of China and America bought. The Bazaars operated on both sides of the market. The market continued steady on buying indications from America.

Sterling opened in New York at 5.05 1/2 and closed at 5.03 1/2. The market was weak.

Market

Steady but extremely dull. Sterling was offered at the opening at 1/8 9/18 with buyers at 1/8 19/32 leading to a small business at 1/8 9/18 for near and later at 1/8 21/32 November. The buying rate throughout the morning for September was 1/8 9/18, for October 1/8 1/4 and on the other hand 1/8 21/32 might have been obtained for November. September sellers 1/8 1/8 1/32, October sellers 1/8 9/18.

Shanghai Market

Sterling 1/4 for near and forward, Dollars 35 3/16 near and forward. Dollars steadied to 35 1/2 during the course of the morning.

IN THE AFTERNOON
The market firmed up late during the afternoon session.

Sterling
The buying rate opened at 1/6 19/32 with sellers at 1/6 9/18, but at the close 1/6 19/32 was on offer. Business was done at 1/6 21/32 November, 1/6 1/4 October and possibly 1/6 19/32 for September.

Shanghai Dollars

Dollars were fixed at 39 1/16 for near, closing with sellers.

service are now out of work.

The total number of employees displaced by the merger has not been officially disclosed. It is known, however, that the new staff will consist of approximately 60 per cent. Cunard and 40 per cent. White Star employees.

A number of the staff of both companies have been informed that they are being transferred to Liverpool.

Most of the younger people displaced will be given two years' salary and their superannuation contributions, with interest, will be refunded. Some of the senior clerical staff have received notices that they will have to leave.

Many of those who would have expected to be retained in the senior clerical ranks have received notices that they will have to leave. Some of these notices were dated from September 1. In some cases men with 20 or 30 years
